TOWN PUTS A BAN ON MARRIAGE AGENTS

Fine of $25 and 30-Day Jail Term Now Law in Newport, Ky., Opposite Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 1.—Marriage agents received a decided setback in Newport, Ky., across the Ohio River from here, when the City Council passed an ordinance against them. The next offender will be fined $25 and be imprisoned in the city jail for 30 days. The definition given to a marriage agent is one "who shows couples desiring to be married to the County Clerk's office and then to a minister or squire, for which services he is paid."

The ordinance is the result of an encounter between two agents in the County Clerk's office in Newport last week.

A couple had secured a marriage license and was looking for a minister when the two men offered their services. The bidding was spirited and a fight followed one's offer of his services for 15 cents. Both were put out of the room and the County Clerk called a minister.

STOLE WATER FOR DYING MAN; FINED

Wealthy Farmer Visited Schoolhouse Well Despite Notice Forbidding It.

MONTGOMERY, Mo., Aug. 1.—Warren Zumalt, a farmer, living north of here, was fined $10.60 by a justice of the peace at New Florence, Mo., yesterday for stealing water. It was charged that Zumalt took water from a well at Sunbeam School House, near his farm.

According to Zumalt, a neighbor, "Uncle Johnny" Green, 70 years old, was dying and wanted cool water. The well at the school house was the only place in the neighborhood where the water could be obtained.

Regardless of the notice not to take the water, Zumalt drew several pails for the dying man and was arrested. "Uncle Johnny" died a few hours later. Zumalt, said to be one of the wealthiest farmers in this section of the State, pleaded guilty to the charge and paid his fine. The fact that use of the water was forbidden was due to the recent drouth.

SUIT OVER 50 CENTS

New Mexico and Santa Fe in Litigation.

SANTA FE, N. M., Aug. 1.—The territory of New Mexico and the city of Santa Fe yesterday went to law over 50 cents, the fee which the city claims from the territory for issuing a building permit for a garage on the grounds of the executive mansion. The territorial officers say the fee is in the nature of a tax from which they claim exemption and yesterday secured a temporary injunction restraining the collection of the fee. The hearing will come before the court on Aug. 10.

BERRY FEAST KILLS BOY

Believed He Ate Poisonous Fruit for Grapes.

A woodland feast on wild grapes, and, it is believed, on some poisonous berries that grew beside the grapes, caused the death of 13-year-old Anthony Sharlack, son of Fred Sharklack and wife of 1518 North Fourth street, St. Charles. His funeral was held Tuesday, and the burial was in the Catholic cemetery.

The boy went with companions to the woods along the Missouri River, opposite St. Charles, last Friday. All ate wild grapes, but the others felt no bad effects. Sharlack became sick after returning home and died Saturday.

PRESIDENT HOE TO VISIT ST. LOUIS AND LOOK OVER GROUND

Head of Printing Press Factory to Investigate City as Site for Big Plant.

FULLY DECIDED TO MOVE

It Is Pointed Out to Him That This Is the Breaking Point of Freight Rates.

By GEORGE W. EADS,

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, sent to New York to present this newspaper's invitation to R. Hoe & Co. to remove their plant to St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Robert Hoe, president of R. Hoe & Co., proprietors of the largest printing press foundries and factories in the world, today promised the Post-Dispatch representative and T. P. Bates, Industrial Commissioner of the Business Men's League, that he would go to St. Louis or send a representative to investigate fully manufacturing and transportation advantages before determining upon a new location for the Hoe plant.

Commissioner Bates and the writer called on President Hoe Tuesday morning and extended to him an invitation on behalf of the Post-Dispatch and the Business Men's League to visit St. Louis. President Hoe had before him the Post-Dispatch letter, presented to General Manager Oscar Roesen yesterday, which set forth the advantages of St. Louis as a manufacturing center.

"I have come to New York as the representative of the Business Men's League, comprised of more than 900 of the leading business men and manufacturers of St. Louis, to extend to you an invitation to visit our city and consider its advantages before you decide upon a new location for your plant," said Commissioner Bates to President Hoe.

"We know that St. Louis can show you greater advantages than any other city. We can prove to you that you can manufacture and distribute your goods from St. Louis cheaper than elsewhere."

Have Decided to Move.

"In the first place," said President Hoe, in response to Bates' invitation, "We have definitely decided to remove our plant from the metropolitan district of New York. The cost of manufacturing here is very great. I am going to take up all of the different propositions and go carefully through them, and then take the matter up with the representatives of the cities which seem to be most deserving.

"In the end we will accept the best proposition that is made to us."

"That is just what St. Louis would like to have you do," said Commissioner Bates. "If we can't show you that you can manufacture and distribute your goods cheaper from St. Louis than from any other city in the United States, we don't want you to come. But we know when you visit St. Louis, and see what we have to offer, that you will go there."

Points Out Advantages.

Commissioner Bates then emphasized the different points set out in the Post-Dispatch's letter of invitation, calling special attention to the fine factory sites on the railroad lines, and to the further fact that St. Louis was the breaking point for all freight rates.

President Hoe gave Commissioner Bates and the Post-Dispatch representative a most cordial reception, and expressed his appreciation of the interest that St. Louis was taking in its efforts to get the Hoe plant, which employs 2,500 people and distributes in wages from $35,000 to $40,000 a week.

The Hoe plant is the biggest manufacturing establishment of Manhattan Island. All other factories have being driven out by the enormous price of real estate. President Hoe said it would take some time to dispose of the property in New York City without sacrificing it.

He estimates the value of the land on which the plants are erected at $2,000,000 and intimated that he expected to sell the land at a price that would enable him to buy a site in another city and erect his foundries and factories.

After presenting the Business Men's League invitation to President Hoe, Commissioner Bates went to see representatives of the American Paper Goods Co. of 92 William street, who are seeking a Western site for a branch factory.

He is also on the trail of several other important industries, but is not yet ready to make an announcement concerning them.

ODDS AGAINST GATES IN BATTLE FOR LIFE

Financier Falls Into Semi-Conscious State, but Rallies Again.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—John W. Gates continues a battle for life which calls forth the admiration of all those about him. It is admitted, however, that the chances are against the financier.

Last night his condition was so plainly critical that his son, Charles, fearing the worst, hastily summoned Dr. Gros. At 6 o'clock this morning Dr. Gros found Mr. Gates in a semi-comatose and dangerous state, but when he returned to the bedside at 11 o'clock he noted a decided rally.

MOTHER SCREAMS, UNCLE RUNNING WITH BABY HELD

John Amend Tries to Recover Child Whose Parent Takes Her Away.

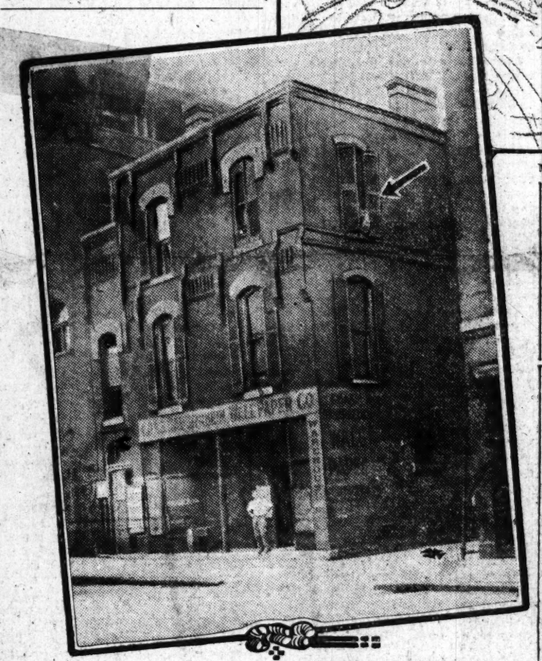

SEIZES HER ON STREET

Dorothy, Aged 4, Prefers to Go With Mamma and Police Give Consent.

Two hundred persons gathered at Taylor and St. Ferdinand avenues at 10:30 p. m. Monday around an angrily gesticulating man, two women, a girl of 13 and a 4-year-old girl, about whom the strife centered. Two policeman were doing what they could to restrain the adults and calm the children, while they waited for a patrol wagon. When the wagon arrived all the principals in the scene rode to the Deer street station. The last thing the bystanders heard was the voice of the little girl insisting, "She's my mamma and I'm her baby."

At the station John Amend was booked on a peace disturbance charge, and gave bond. The others were notified to appear in the Dayton street police court Tuesday, to tell of two family combats which marked the culmination Monday of the strife for the little one. Judge Sanders Tuesday fined Amend $25.

Four-year-old Dorothy Amend is John Amend's niece, and has lived for four months past at his home, 1543 North Fourteenth street. He and his wife became attached to her, and when the child's mother, Lily Amend, called at the house Monday morning, the foster-mother objected to letting her go. Mrs. Josephine McCarthy, Lily Amend's aunt, seconded her demand for little Dorothy, and the two women succeeded in taking the child, whom they removed to Mrs. McCarthy's home, 3625 St. Ferdinand avenue.

John Amend went to the McCarthy home Monday night and learned that Lily Amend, her sister, Viola, her aunt and little Dorothy had gone for a street car ride. He waited at the corner, and when they got off a Taylor car after 10 o'clock he advanced and tried to take little Dorothy from them.

Dorothy clung to her mother, and the two women and the older girl resisted Amend and called for a policeman. Policemen came in time to stop Amend at Cottage avenue, as he was running away with the child. They took him back to the scene of the encounter.

At the station Lieut. Mansfield decided that, in the absence of any court decree, the mother was entitled to keep the child. This decision pleased Dorothy, who clung to her mother as she repeated: "She's my mamma and I'm her baby. I'll tell the court man that, too." she added when her aunt told her she would have to go to court.

Amend admitted to Judge Sanders in the Dayton Street Police Court that he did not have the custody of the child. He said that he and his wife had taken care of the child for nine months and that he had made several efforts to get the mother to sign the child over to them. He was fined $25 and costs on the peace disturbance charge. He took an appeal.

HAITI CAPITAL IN A PANIC

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Aug. 1.—The capital is in a panic. The armies of the revolutionists remain outside but the firing of their cannon is plainly heard here.

President Simon today issued a public proclamation declaring that the revolutionists would have to cross his dead body to wrest the sword of authority from the hand in which the nation had placed it.

MRS. MAX JUDELL THROWN OR FALLS FROM HIGH WINDOW

Policeman Finds Her Unconscious in Alley Under Casement, From Which a Fire Escape Rope Dangles and She Dies Four Hours Later in the City Hospital Without Reviving—Jewelry Furnishes First Clew to Identity.

Companion Left the Vendome, on Olive Street, Where Tragedy Occurred, Half an Hour Before the Finding of Mrs. Judell, Telling Proprietor That He Would Return in a Short Time, but Police Cannot Fund Him.

Finding of More Than $70 on Body, Which Was Marked Apparently by Fingers, Leads to Belief That Robbery Was Attempted—Husband, a Salesman Who Built $18,000 West End Home, Is Away.

Mrs. Max Judell, of 305 Union boulevard, whose husband is out of town, died at the city hospital at 8 a. m. Tuesday, following injuries received when she fell or was thrown from a third story window of the Vendome Hotel at Fifteenth and Olive streets. She was found unconscious in the alley back of the hotel at 4 a. m.

Search is being made for a man who went to the hotel with her at 12:30 a. m. and registered "R. Pappas, with his wife." He left the hotel at 3:30 a. m., telling the clerk he would return in a few minutes.

Mrs. Judell's watch stopped at 3:24 o'clock. The crystal was broken.

A rope fire escape hung out of the window of the room and dangled within a few feet of where Mrs. Judell was found. Bruises on her arms and legs and the fact that more than $70 was found in one of her stockings led Police Captain Schwartz to believe that an attempt was made to rob her, and that perhaps she had jumped from the window to escape her companion.

The hotel records show that the man who accompanied Mrs. Judell paid $1 for the room. This, Captain Schwartz thinks, shows that he did not depart from the hotel with the intention of avoiding payment, but for a more urgent cause. The police believe Mrs. Judell had already fallen or had been thrown from the window when the man went out.

Asks for Police Guard.

Patrolman Schnarr of the Page boulevard District told a Post-Dispatch reporter that six months ago Mrs. Judell asked that a police guard be placed on her home to protect it from burglers. Schnarr went there, he says, and when he saw Mrs. Judell his experience with alcoholic patients led him to believe she was on the verge of delirium tremens.

This is thought by some police officials to offer the possible explanation that Mrs. Judell leaped from the window while temporarily deranged.

His attention had been attracted to her, he said, because of the frequency with which she was out late at night and because he had seen her on the streets with different men. One of these men, he said, was short and dark and of foreign appearance.

When Mrs. Judell was taken to the city hospital it was found she wore a bluish gray tailor-made suit, a corset cover and shoes and stockings.

A search of the hotel room was made by the police. They found Mrs. Judell's hat and other garments and a pair of men's black silk socks with garters attached to them.

W. E. Lockman, manager of the hotel, was acting as clerk when the couple went there at 12:45 o'clock. The man was tall and slender, smooth shaven and sandy complexion. He wore a gray suit and a black felt hat and appeared to be about 25 years old. Lockman had never seen the man before, nor the woman. He assigned them to room 32.

"There was no sound of a disturbance in the room," he said. "A woman occupying an adjoining room heard nothing. The man came downstairs at 1:30 o'clock. He said he was going out, but would be back in a few minutes."

Detectives remained at Mrs. Judell's bedside in the hope that she would rally sufficiently to make a statement but she did not regain consciousness.

Bruises Indicate Struggle.

Physicians at the hospital found other injuries besides the skull fracture. On both of Mrs. Judell's arms, above the elbows were livid bruises which seemed to have been made by hands tightly grasping the arms. Similar marks were on the wrists and there were bruises at the size and shape of ... umb on the calves of ...

Man Who Is Sought in Hotel Mystery

HERE is a description of the man who accompanied Mrs. Judell to the Vendome Hotel: Twenty-five years old, 5 feet, 10 inches tall. Fair complexion, smooth-shaven, brown or neutral blond hair, blue eyes; wore a black felt hat and a gray suit.

the policemen who examined the hotel room said that they found nothing there to show that there was a struggle and employes and guests of the hotel say they heard no unusual noise.

Policeman Finds Her in Alley.

Policeman O'Keefe of Central District found Mrs. Judell lying in the alley. Her gold locket and a fob, both bore the initials B. F. B. On a finger of her left hand was a gold band wedding ring with the inscription: M. J. to B. F. B., 3-30-'07.

The initials on the watch found on Mrs. Judell, which the police believe to be "B. F. B." correspond to her maiden name, Bertie F. Bayes, and they may be interpreted as "P. K. P." and may be a clew to the woman's companion at the hotel. The initials are somewhat worn, which leads to the uncertainty.

The watch is so large that it might have belonged to a man.

Lying on the dresser in the hotel room was a purse, and in it was a gas receipt dated July 7, 1909, and in the name of Mrs. Max Judell, 903 North Euclid avenue. There also was a receipt for a hat plume bill dated Nov. 17, 1910, in the name of Mrs. Max Judell, 1169 Walton avenue.

Fred C. Judell, who has an office in the Commercial Building, called at the city hospital and identified the body as that of Mrs. Bertie Judell, wife of his brother, Max. Her maiden name, he said, was Bertie F. Bayes, corresponding to the initials in her wedding ring. His brother married her in 1907. He had not seen her for a year, he said.

Policemen searched the Judell flat after the death. It was in great disorder as though preparations were being made to move. Each of three beds looked as if it had recently been slept in.

HEARST PLANS TO PRINT NEWSPAPER HERE THIS FALL

Rumor That the Star Will Be Sold to Him Is Denied.

The rumor that William R. Hearst is soon to start a newspaper in St. Louis, possibly absorbing the St. Louis Star as part of his plan, has gained wide circulation. The plans are said to have proceeded to the point where an editor has been chosen, and is said that Foster Coates, editor of the Boston American, has been selected for the place.

Hearst is in Europe, but some of his lieutenants in New York Tuesday said a Hearst paper would be started in St. Louis this fall. They thought it would be a morning paper, and that the first issue would appear about Nov. 1.

It would be impossible for anyone to purchase the stock of the St. Louis Star until the Lewis receivership is settled. The greater part of this stock is held in the name of the Lewis Publishing Co., which was included in the recent order of the United States Circuit Court placing the Lewis properties under a receivership. The refusal of the St. Louis Union Trust Co. to act as receiver has further postponed the possibility of negotiating the sale of any of the assets.

The stock was purchased by E. G. Lewis from Nathan Frank, and bonds were issued, secured by the stock. Payment of interest on these bonds, and of rent on the Star Building, in which Frank is heavily interested, is understood to be in arrears, but Frank declared yesterday that Lewis was still the owner of the paper.

"I know nothing of any negotiations with Hearst," said Frank to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "I know Hearst is abroad, and that I have not been in communication with him. Lewis is the owner, but he is hardly in a position to sell without consulting me. I believe that Hearst will eventually have a paper here, possibly quite soon, but I have no personal knowledge of his plans."

Eugene H. Angert, chief attorney for the Lewis reorganization syndicate, declined to make any statement about the matter, saying his relations with the Lewis affairs were confidential. Others in a position to know also refused to talk. M. J. Lowenstein, president of the Star Publishing Co., said he did not credit the report connecting that paper with Hearst's plans, but that he would not necessarily know if it were true.

USES WEIGHT TO FELL A MAN WHO SHOT AT HIM

John E. Rudloff Hits William H. Tefft as the Latter Fires Three Times.

John E. Rudloff, a Wellston lawyer, felled William H. Tefft with an iron ore paper weight after Tefft had fired two shots at him in the office of the Wellston Realty Co. at noon Tuesday.

Tefft first entered at 11:30 a. m. and asked a $10 loan from J. E. Radcliff, president of the company. He was refused, as Radcliff did not know him. "I need the money to get on my feet," he said, and admitted that he could give no security.

Returning at noon, he found Rudloff sitting at a desk, and began firing at him. The first bullet went into the desk, the second into a bookcase.

Rudloff then picked up the paper weight and hurled it at the man, striking him in the center of the forehead just before he fired a third time. The third bullet went into the ceiling.

Tefft, who lives in the 640 block on Mount avenue, Wellston, was sent to the Wellston Hospital by Constable Schoenbein. He was seriously injured by the paper weight, which weighed 6 pounds. Dr. Bracy treated him.

ARBITRATION TREATIES TO BE SIGNED TODAY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The general arbitration treaties between the United States and Great Britain and the United States and France will be signed at 3 o'... this afternoon in the President's ...

keep cool with my kimona turned long side out."

This letter is not dated.

Another letter, which was written by Udell was dated Dec. 11, 1910, at the and Hotel, Keokuk, Io. It revealed t his wife had suspected his con- ncy. "Your suspicions," he wrote, re absolutely groundless. If you do not keep up such an awful knocking and permit a few pure thoughts to enter your head, things will move along more smoothly and peace will enter where now it is a continual rough house, unbearable and disgraceful. If you were continually on the jump as I am, you would have little chance for the company of the opposite sex, even if you desired it, but I do not."

After referring to the responsibilities and expenses which kept him from frivolities, he wrote: "I have had a drinking (but I hope this is of the past), careless wife, whose general conversation was fault-finding and a stubborn contrariness to any wishes I might express, and when I look back on the indignities that have been unjustly and spitefully heaped upon me, my heart cries out against such treatment. I hope you will take these lines to heart, at least if you wish to remain wedded to me."

It was signed, "As ever lovingly, Max."

A clipping from the society column of a St. Louis newspaper telling of her marriage was found among the wife's effects in the Judell home. The name of Judell was incorrectly spelled in the clipping, which was as follows:

"A prominent society event at Springfield, Ill., today will be the wedding of Miss Bertha Bates of that city to Mr. Max Udell of St. Louis. The ceremony will be performed at the home of the bride's parents. Miss Bates is a Southern girl of a brunette type. Mr. Udell is one of the rising young business men of this city. Mrs. M. Udell, mother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Fred C. Udell, his brother, accompanied him to the Illinois town to attend the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Udell will make their home here, going at once to housekeeping on their return from a brief wedding journey."

Post-Dispatch reporters found Mrs. Matilda Judell of 3912 Russell avenue, a other-in-law of Mrs. Max Judell. She id that her son was traveling in est Virginia for a St. Louis tobacco nouse when he met the girl who afterward became his wife.

"They were married four years ago and I have seen little of them since," said Mrs. Judell. "He built a home for her on Union boulevard. I never heard of their having trouble."

At the address on Euclid avenue a Post-Dispatch reporter learned from Fannie Grimes, a negress, that the Judells lived there until about a year ago and that they moved to 1109 Walton avenue.

A Post-Dispatch reporter who went to the Union boulevard home found that it was locked. Henry Pondom, a painter, who was at work on the building, said the house was owned by Mrs. Max Judell. He saw her leave the house at noon Monday, he said, and since then had seen no signs of life about the place. The painter also said that Mrs. Judell told him she was going to move and he said that apparently a man had been helping her pack the household goods Monday forenoon. The painter said he heard the man giving directions as though he had some authority in the house.

Charles Bosse, a salesman for the Stickney Cigar Co., also went to the City Hospital. He said that he believed the woman was the wife of his friend, Max Judell, formerly a cigar salesman here and now working for a Chicago firm.

Home in Exclusive District.

The Judell home is opposite the west entrances of Portland and Westmoreland places, two exclusive residence streets. It is a modern flat, said to be worth $18,000. Though the house was built by Judell, Mrs. Judell told Policeman Schnarr and neighbors that the title to the property was in her name.

Mrs. Judell was 32 years old. She was tall and inclined to stoutness. Her regular features, brown hair and eyes and fair complexion, indicated unusual beauty in her early youth.

Memorandum of Purchases.

A memorandum written on the back of a Nagel's cafe menu card for the dinner served between 5 and 8 p. m. Monday contained an account of Mrs. Judell's expenses for the day. It showed that she started out with $85. Her expenditures were:

Corset	$5 00
Waist	3 00
Vests	50
C. K.	10
Tips	35
Lunch	50
Beer	15
Neck scarf	1 00
Belt	1 00
Total	$11 60

On this memorandum she deducted the $11.60 from $85, leaving a balance of $73.40. Under this she wrote down two other items of expenditure, one of 75 cents and the other of 10 cents. This total of 85 cents, subtracted from $73.40, left $72.55, which was only 83 cents more than was found in her stocking after she was hurt.

Capt. Schwartz told a Post-Dispatch reporter that he would not close the Vendome Hotel as a result of the tragedy.

"I have no authority to do so under the law," Capt. Schwartz said. "The Vendome is a regularly conducted hotel. The mere fact that persons who go to the hotel register as man and wife absolves the proprietor from all responsibility. The hotel keeper has no right to question that relationship. The fact that the tragedy occurred at this hotel should cause no more action on the part of the police than if it had occurred at any of the higher class hotels."

FOLK'S ANSWERS IN ACCORD WITH BRYAN'S VIEWS

Replies to Each Question Put by Nebraskan to Presidential Candidates.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 1.—Former Gov. Folk of Missouri has answered the questions recently directed by William J. Bryan as Democratic presidential candidates. The former Governor is in full accord with Bryan. In his reply to the Nebraskan, Folk declares himself to be in favor of tariff for revenue only, free raw materials, separate and cor-ordinate branches of government, each keeping within its own sphere; direct election of senators, income tax, independence for Filipinos, campaign publicity in advance of election, every dollar and its source to be accounted for; State rights, retention of the labor planks in the Democratic platform of 1908, strict regulation of railroads and legislation compelling banks to insure depositors.

Folk is opposed to consideration of the element of protection in revision of the tariff, the "rule of reason," fixed by the Supreme Court in its recent trust decisions; repeal of the criminal clause in the Sherman anti-trust law, the Aldrich currency system, asset currency in any form, and the central bank.

Folk said: "A tariff should be for no other purpose than that of revenue. The chief object of a protective tariff is to stifle competition and to that extent create monopoly. A tariff for revenue only is for the benefit of the public, but a tariff for protection is for the benefit of a few, at the expense of the public. A protective tariff is a graft given to a class, enabling that class to prey upon the rest of the people.

"True democracy cannot offer one class an advantage over another in the shape of subsidies, bounties, protective tariffs, or other special privileges. It can only promise each man that no one else shall be given an advantage over him and that each shall have an equal opportunity to live and labor and enjoy the fruits of honest toil.

"I do not favor the repeal of the criminal clause of the anti-trust law, but I do favor its vigorous enforcement. A corporation is merely an association of individuals, exercising a charter power conferred by some state. A corporation can no more violate law by itself than a chair or any other inanimate object can violate a law. Some men might take a chair and through its instrumentality, by striking another man with it, commit a crime.

"It would be just as logical in that case to punish the chair and allow the man to go free as it is when a number of individuals, through the instrumentality of a corporation, violate the law, to fine the corporation and permit the individuals who caused it to violate the law to go unwhipped of justice. Congress should define restraint of trade and make it clear that all restraint of trade is unreasonable."

GIVES UP STUDY FOR OPERA TO WED HER TEACHER'S SON

Miss Julie Brewer Persuaded by C. Carroll Karst to Adopt a Fireside Career.

While Mme. Vetta-Karst was training Miss Julie Brewer for an operatic career, the teacher's son, C. Carrol Karst, was persuading her that his fireside joys would be more to her taste than the triumphs of the stage.

The young man succeeded in frustrating his mother's plans for her favorite pupil, and Miss Brewer, having rejected several offers of operatic positions, Tuesday evening will become her teacher's daughter-in-law.

The wedding of Karst and Miss Brewer will take place at 6 p. m. at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brewer, in Shaw place. The bridal pair will immediately go to housekeeping in the Netherlands Apartments.

The future of Mrs. Karst, while abandoning her cherished operatic plans, has not given up music, and will keep up the concert work in which she has won distinction here. One of her noted successes was won in her appearance, last spring, at one of the closing concerts of the Choral-Symphony season.

Karst, who has lived with his mother at the Hotel Berlin, is in business. He was educated at France, and was a pupil in the Academy of Paris, winning there in 1899 the medal offered by the minister of public instruction. He was one of the world's fleetest runners, and was a contestant for France in the Olympic games at Athens in 1900.

The marriage ceremony will be performed by the Rev. M. T. Haw of St. Paul's Methodist Church. Both the bridegroom and bride are Christian Scientists.

SEEKS MOTHER HE HAS NEVER SEEN

Youth, 17, Says He Loves Woman of Whom He Has No Recollection.

Carl Lenhart, 17 years old, wants to make the acquaintance of his mother. He does not recall having ever seen her. He loves her, though, and says he will not stop until he finds her.

Lenhart lives on the farm of B. F. Tanner near Fayette, Mo. He did not know he had a mother until about two years ago, when he was informed of the fact by Tanner.

Lenhart was placed in charge of the Children's Home Society of Missouri at 4427 Margaretta avenue when he was a baby and at the age of 7 was adopted by the Tanner family. They have treated him as one of their own. He appealed to the police Tuesday for aid in seeking his mother.

COMPROMISE FREE LIST BILL PASSED BY U. S. SENATE

Adoption of Measure Offered by Kern Follows Defeat of That Sent From House.

ONLY SLIGHT CHANGE

Fresh Meats Stricken From Schedule Except When Imported Under Reciprocal Agreement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Combined in the same alliance that resulted in the passage of a compromise woolen tariff revision bill in the Senate last week, the Democrats and Republican insurgents of that body today passed a compromise farmers' free list bill. The original House bill first was defeated and then re-offered in modified form by Senator Kern of Indiana.

As amended and finally adopted, the bill differed but little from the original.

The Kern amendment, like the Bailey amendment that had been previously defeated, took meat products out of the free list bill; but it granted the privileges of free entry of meats to countries that in turn admit free of duty American cotton, corn, wheat, oats, horses, cattle and hogs.

The Senate earlier had defeated Senator Bailey's amendment taking all meats out of the free list bill. The Kern amendment represented the attempt to reconcile the Democratic interests with the insurgent Republicans, who believed some further concessions should be obtained for agricultural products.

Vote a Tie.

The adoption of the compromise measure came after a narrow failure of Democratic efforts to pass the bill in its original form. But for the fact that Senator Bailey of Texas refused to support the bill in the shape it had passed the House, the measure would have been passed unchanged by the Senate. As it was, it was beaten by a tie vote, 39 to 39, Senator Bailey being the only Democrat to vote against it.

The Democrats and insurgents were ready for the defeat of the measure. While several of them had voted for it, it was apparently understood that if it was defeated it would be resurrected and amended by a compromise agreement and again brought to a vote.

Senator La Follette of Wisconsin, Republican insurgent, who had voted against the passage of the bill, made the motion to reconsider the vote. It carried without a rollcall. With the bill restored to life, Senator Kern of Indiana came forward with the compromise agreement. The vote on the Kern compromise amendment was as follows:

How the Vote Was Cast.

For the Amendment: Republicans—Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Brown, Clapp, Nelson, Crawford, Gamble, Cummins, Kenyon, Dixon, Gronna, McCumber, Jones, La Follette, Townsend, Works. Democrats—Bacon, Bailey, Bankhead, Johnson (Alabama), Bryan, Fletcher, Chamberlain, Chilton, Watson, Clarke (Arkansas), Davis, Foster, Thornton, Hitchcock, Johnson (Me.), Shively, Kern, Martin, Swanson, Martine, Myers, Newlands, O'Gorman, Overman, Owen, Paynter, Pomerene, Reed, Stone, Simmons, Smith (Maryland), Taylor.

Against the amendment: Republicans—Bradley, Brandegee, McLean, Briggs, Burnham, Burton, Clark (Wyoming), Crane, Lodge, Cullom, Lorimer, Curtis, Guggenheim, Heyburn, Lippitt, Wetmore, Nixon, Oliver, Page, Perkins, Poindexter, Richardson, Root, Smith (Michigan), Smoot, Stephenson, Warren Democrats: Gore, Smith (South Carolina).

Absent or paired with absentees—Culberson, Dillingham, Dupont, Frye, Gallinger, Lea, Penrose, Percy, Raynor, Sutherland, Tillman, Williams.

Amendments Defeated.

The Senate began its final struggle on the free list bill with the defeat of amendments offered by Senator Gronna of North Dakota to put cement, lime, coal and coke on the free list and to exempt boots and shoes from its provisions.

Senator Gronna secured a roll call on the amendment for free coal and coke, but was beaten, 52 to 32. Party lines split on the free coal proposition. Those voting for the Gronna amendment were:

Democrats—Bailey, Bryan, Fletcher, Gore, Owen, Hitchcock, Johnson, (Maine); Martine, O'Gorman, Pomerene, Watson.

Republicans—Borah, Bristow, Brown, Clapp, Nelson, Crawford, Gamble, Cummins, Kenyon, Dixon, Gronna, McCumber and La Follette.

Senator Bailey's amendment to exempt beef and beef products from the free list received the support of 13 Republicans, but was opposed by the Democrats except Bailey.

It was beaten on a roll call, 63 to 14, those voting for it being Bailey, Borah, Bourne, Bristow, Clapp, Crawford, Cummins, Dixon, Gamble, Heyburn, Jones, Kenyon, La Follette, Townsend.

The Free List bill was the second of the big tariff revision measures that followed Canadian reciprocity over from the Democratic House.

Its life dates back to April 12, when Democratic Leader Underwood introduced it in the House. The Ways and Means Committee seven days later reported the bill favorably and the House on May 8 passed it by a vote of 226 to 114. Then the Finance Committee of the Senate took it, gave hearings on it for five days and on June 22 Chairman Penrose of that committee reported the bill adversely to the Senate. The next day Senator Bailey of Texas offered the bill as an amendment to the reciprocity bill and this amendment was rejected on July 12. On July 14 the bill was fixed for a final vote today and it became the unfinished business of the Senate on July 7, though little advantage was taken of the opportunity for debate.

WHITE DECLARES BROWNE PAID HIM FOR LORIMER VOTE

Then Confessed Bribe Taker Tells of His Comforts in Railroad Passes.

PULLMANS WERE INCLUDED

Pennsylvania and B. & O. Roads Not in List—Some Came Without Request.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Still insisting that he was paid handsomely as a member of the Illinois Legislature for voting for William Lorimer for United States Senator, Charles A. White resumed the witness stand today before the Senate Lorimer Committee. It was the same story White had told to the first Lorimer Committee.

Correspondence between Lee O'Neill Browne, the Democratic minority leader in the Illinois Legislature, who is accused of giving White the alleged Lorimer bribe money, was introduced in evidence.

Produces Letters.

White produced letters alleged to have been written by Browne, Attorney Hanecy, representing Senator Lorimer, furnishing the letters Browne is said to have received from White.

In one of the letters written just before the Legislature met, Browne told White where he could get railroad and Pullman passes. White said that upon his arrival at Springfield to attend the Legislative session he signed an agreement to support Browne for minority leader; he refused to vote for Shurtleff, the Republican candidate for Speaker, although his Democratic colleagues switched from Browne to Shurtleff.

Is Labor Advocate.

"Shurtleff had been unfriendly to labor and I told them I would not vote for him under any consideration," said White.

While committeemen listened with surprise, White rattled off the list of railroad, Pullman and telegraph passes he held as a member of the Legislature.

"Did they all send passes?" inquired Senator Jones.

"No. The Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio did not issue passes."

"Did the passes come by request or otherwise?" asked Chairman Dillingham.

"By request and without, by mail and by messenger."

He explained that he was given an Illinois Central pass with the request that in turn he vote "for Senate bill 313," which he said was "a personal injury bill." He lent his passes, he said, to Representatives Forest, Cermack, Browne and Wilson. He said he thought he had scratched out the destination on Pullman passes and substituted other destinations.

Transportation Regulated.

"'Manny' Abrahams regulated the the transportation for members," testified White. "He told us we could alter Pullman passes." It was Abrahams who was termed "the Bell Wether" because his name led the roll calls. Wite added that all his passes were intra-state, and that he still had a few of the Pullman passes.

Discussing corruption funds, White said:

"Once on the train, Representative Charles D. Luke (now dead) said that at the end of the preceding legislature there was a 'jack pot,' and he was offered $200 of it. Luke said he tore the money up and threw it at the feet of the man who offered it to him. Luke said he told the man he would not sell his manhood for $200."

The witness said he believed Luke mentioned a man of the name of Tippett as connected with the $200 incident.

At yesterday's session White produced many testimonials of good character and ability from schools he had attended in his youth and from former employers, when he took the stand yesterday.

Explaining that he wished to show the source from which White obtained his food for thought, Attorney J. H. Marble for the committee asked the witness what he was reading at the time he was elected to the Legislature.

What He Read.

White mentioned Lawson's high finance exposure magazine articles, which he characterized as a "pretty good piece of work;" "The Jungle," by Upton Sinclair, exposing the stockyards as a "splendid piece of work;" four volumes of Roman history, "about the Carthagenians, the Syrians and that class of stuff;" Ingersoll's complete works, Bryan's Commoner, Taylor's Life Pictures, Appeal to Reason, a Socialist publication; various labor magazines, and the daily newspapers of St. Louis.

The witness said that before he was elected to the Legislature he had heard of several men who had taken bribes and then exposed the bribers. He said he told his supporters during the campaign that after he was elected he would expose any corruption at Springfield, but he denied saying he would take the bribe in so doing.

TRUST COULD NOT COMPETE WITH ITS RIVAL IN SOUTH

Engineer Declares Purchase by Steel Combine Was Necessary to Control Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Republican members of the House Steel Trust Investigating Committee were in the majority today when hearings in the affairs of the United States Steel Corporation were resumed. Representative Stanley, chairman of the committee, was the only Democrat in attendance, other Democratic members having been detained in Washington because of the caucus on the wool bill and other legislation.

The first witness was Charles Page Perrin, one of the consulting engineers who made a report on the ores of the Alabama, Tennessee and Georgia mines of the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co., the Sloss Sheffield Steel and Iron Co., the Republic Iron and Steel Co. and later the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co. syndicate. The report on the ore holdings of the region known as the Birmingham district was made in 1904.

Summed up, the estimate reached was that the district contained from 400,000,000 to 500,000,000 tons of iron ore and from 1,000,000,000 to 2,000,000,000 tons of coal.

Chairman Stanley asked Perrin his opinion of the value of the ore in the Birmingham district as compared with other ore deposits anywhere in the world.

"It is one of the greatest and most valuable ore properties that I know of in the world. One of its chief advantages is proximity of the ore to the coal," replied Perrin.

Perrin also declared that cost of producing pig iron in the Birmingham field was at least $3 a ton less than in any other district in the world.

Chairman Stanley procured an expression of opinion from the witness that if the United States Steel Corporation had not absorbed the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co. it could not compete with products of the Birmingham field in the territory south of the Ohio River.

EXTRA SESSION MAY REVISE WHOLE TARIFF

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Democratic Leader Underwood declared in the House today that if any of the Democratic tariff revision bills should go to the President and be signed by him the extra session of Congress would be continued until the entire revision program was carried through.

The House asked for a conference with the Senate on the wool tariff bill and Speaker Clark appointed as House conferees Representatives Underwood of Alabama, Randall of Texas, Harrison of New York, Democrats, and Payne of New York and Dalzell of Pennsylvania, Republicans.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 1.—A well-dressed sneak thief gave guests seated on the porch of the Hotel Traymore a fright last night when he grabbed a $700 diamond sunburst from the neck of Mrs. C. H. Scarlett, a wealthy widow of Baltimore.

He darted down the veranda, vaulted the railing and slipped down an alley to the lawn of the Hotel Brighton with a half hundred angry men in pursuit, but he managed to escape.

Mrs. Scarlett, with a woman companion, had just seated herself in a rocker when the man walked by. He snatched the gem from her and was gone before she could make an outcry.

NAGEL FINDS IRON MEN WORK 7 DAYS

Third of 90,000 Put In 84 Hours Every Week, or 12 Hours a Day.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Secretary Nagel of the Department of Commerce and Labor today in a special report to the Senate on condition of employment in the iron and steel industry in the United States stated that "out of over 90,000 employes covered in the report the customary working week of one-third of them was a seven-day week, Sunday not differing from other days, and approximately one-fourth of the 90,000 worked 84 hours or over per week, which in effect means a 12-hour day every day in the week, including Sunday.

Here is a fine example for all the little boys and girls and for the grown-ups, too. Helpfulness is a fine thing and it is never so fine as when it is exerted in behalf of those who cannot help themselves.

Now here are four little girls who deserve all the joy and satisfaction that comes from knowing that they have done something for the poor little babies who need milk and ice to keep them alive these sultry midsummer days.

These four good-hearted children are Bernardine Muth, Marie Simon, Ezilda Jones and Genevieve Lamberton.

Enjoyable Entertainment.

To keep the little babies from starving they produced a play entitled "The Burglar Alarm." It was a jolly play, too, full of action and nicely staged. Those who saw it felt that in addition to having the chance to aid a worthy cause, they really were getting most enjoyable entertainment for their money.

The show netted $60.32 for the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund.

Assisting the young stage directors to make the show a success were Miss Pauline Jones, a well-known reader, and Mrs. D. H. Jones.

The play was given on the lawn of Joseph Muth's residence at 6702 Oakland avenue.

Grounds Illuminated.

The beautiful grounds were brightly illuminated by Japanese lanterns.

At one end of the lawn were booths at which ice cream, soda, lemonade and fancy work were sold.

Many of the articles offered for sale were made by the little girls and the sale of these alone netted $19. More than two hundred persons saw the performance.

POLICEMAN IS SO OBLIGING THAT HE LOSES PRISONER

Takes Man Arrested to See One of His Friends and He Escapes.

Patrolman Lang of the Carondelet District, being obliging, lost a prisoner Monday evening. He arrested Thomas J. Walton, 23 years old, in connection with the theft of a suit clothes and watch fob from Dr. Max C. Starkloff's houseboat at Haven street.

"If you will just take me to the Ferguson-McKinley Dry Goods Company's house I will straighten out this matter," said Walton. "My father in Alabama is wealthy and Mr. McKinney is his personal friend. I pawned Dr. Starkloff's suit for $5 and I am sure Mr. McKinney will advance me that much so that I can redeem the clothes."

Lang obtained Sergt. Schaeffer's permission to grant Walton's request.

"Better handcuff him, though," suggested the sergeant.

"Please don't do that," pleaded Walton. "I wouldn't think of disgracing Mr. McKinney by looking like a prisoner. Let's just make a business call."

Lang and Walton rode to Twelfth street and Washington avenue and the policeman permitted the prisoner to enter the store ahead of him so it would not be noticed that he was in custody. He sauntered through an aisle and disappeared.

Some Sweethearts of Mine

A History of One Man's Loves
Written for the Post-Dispatch

By R. Cornelius Raby.

NO. I. GUSSIE.

GUSSIE was my first love; or, rather, she was the first of whom I have any definite recollection. I have no doubt that I loved others before Gussie, for I am convinced it is an affliction I was born with.

We were both seven years old, and in our first year at school. Gussie was a pretty little girl, with real golden hair, and light blue eyes; and when I think of her now, I flatter myself that I had good taste, even at that tender age.

Concealment, like a worm i' the bud, never fed for long on my damask cheek. It was a very short time after I had conceived a fondness for Gussie that she found it out. My first move was to give her some pretty picture cards, such as the various card companies in the East used to send out as samples.

The price per dozen was printed on them, where the name belonged, and this was covered with a beautiful embossed scrap picture in bright colors. I had received a dozen of these from a cousin of mine in the country, and I treasured them very highly. But my love for Gussie was so ardent that I was willing to divide even this treasure with her—prudently reserving half of them for a future contingency.

I wrapped them up neatly in a piece of writing paper, wrote her name on the outside and dropped them on her desk in passing. Gussie blushed a little, and very cautiously she examined my offering. She seemed to be pleased, and that made me very happy indeed. So agitated was I, that for the first time I lost the place in our reading lesson and had to stay in for it; but to please Gussie, I felt, was worth even such disgrace.

Now the question was, what would Gussie do about it? The pictures were certainly pretty enough, I reasoned, and they could mean only one thing to Gussie—that I loved her. Knowing this, of course Gussie would now love me. It did not once occur to me that it could possibly be otherwise. Perhaps she would even reciprocate with a handsome present to me. Upon this prospect did my imagination dwell with no uncertain relish.

GUSSIE was always prettily dressed, and I fancied she was very rich Who knows, thought I, what lavish return my tribute might invoke from her. So I composed myself to wait for Gussie's move to show her devotion to me. In vain I awaited further developments to jusify my expectations and encourage the ardor of my suit. Gussie did not give me anything; she neither breathed nor penned nor with expressive glance conveyed Love's tender message which I craved. She did not even thank me for my princely gift.

Naturally optimistic, and especially inclined to be charitable in my estimate of Gussie, I soon came to the conclusion that only I was to blame for this painful hitch in the proceedings. Gussie, no doubt, was accustomed to receive such little attentions, and disposed to consider them lightly. Perhaps, after all, I had not made it sufficiently clear that I loved her; and my gift to her might require some definite explanation. At least I could not afford to part with six fine pictures like that without making every effort to have some satisfaction for what seemed to me an extremely bold demonstration.

I had noticed that other boys and girls in my class often passed notes to each other, and I had heard them referred to as love notes. Here, thought I, was clearly the key to the situation. I could not hope to win Gussie's love, certainly, unless I were up to date and could write her a respectable love note. But how was this to be done—how to begin it, and what to say—this puzzled me indeed.

WITH all my sentiment, mine was essentially a practical nature; and after much perplexity, I resolved that the best I could do was to state my case as briefly and plainly as it could be put into words. I tore a sheet from my tablet, took my pencil with me and sought the seclusion of the barn, where I thought myself secure from embarrassed interruption. Down on my knees, with an empty feed-box for a table, I scrawled this message:

I love you. That's why I gave you those pictures.

I realized that this was a very short note, but I felt that it covered the ground. At least, I had nothing else of importance to communicate; and I was just folding it up neatly when Walter, that meddlesome twin brother of mine, appeared on the scene, like some evil genius, and snatched the precious missive from me.

To be in love, I felt, was very sweet; but to have any one at home find it out, was disgraceful. To no purpose did I plead with my obdurate brother; the deluge of my bitter, angry tears failed to soften his heart, and even when I tried to scratch and fight, he outfought and scratched me at every point.

He would fix me, he would. Wasn't I ashamed of myself? He would tell on me, sure. Who was this I loved, and what pictures did I give away? I told him. Awful! And they were a present from my cousin, too. Did I give them all away? I had kept six, I said. He didn't believe me—I must show him. Very contritely, hoping to appease him, and thereby avert the spread of this grevious scandal, I led him to the box containing my treasures, and there displayed the six pictures I had left.

THEN and there my brother exhibited a generalship which today I appreciate and admire as much as I deplored it then. Having learned my little secret, he would make the most of his advantage. If I would give him the remaining six pictures, I could have my note back, and he would not tell on me. To have him tell on me loomed up so terribly that I was glad to accept his terms. The bargain concluded, he boldly confessed that Gussie was his sweetheart; that he would give her the rest of the pictures; that she cared nothing for me, and I might as well forget about her as quickly as possible.

With that bold, scheming brother contesting the field with me, I knew better than to make any further overtures to Gussie. The next day I made a face at her and felt myself avenged.

And within a week I had won the affections of another picturesque lassie with bright red hair and freckles to match, who chewed gum in a surprisingly artistic manner, and who had most relentlessly spurned the advances of several boys much larger than myself.

(To Be Continued.)

New Style Notes.

THE jabot craze in Paris is creating a strong demand for light laces since the deft needlewoman will make her own jabots and side frills. For this purpose the very wide lace is employed, and the handy woman can see any number of pretty models in the shops from which she can fashion this stylish bit of neckwear.

The present vogue of sashes, girdles and head bands has called forth a large variety of fancy ribbons. One that works up beautifully for these purposes is of gauze in light shades, the entire surface being decorated at intervals with tiny crystal beads. This ribbon is a favorite for the fashionable evening caps.

While kimono sleeves are still the favorite style, many of them are set into a rounded armhole instead of being cut in one with the bodice. The long shoulder cut gives the drooping kimono effect.

The double breasted linen and pongee waists with the box plaits in the front and the back that are finished off to wear outside of the skirt have grown popular with young girls during hot weather. When kept in position the figure by a broad patent belt they look quite chic. The waists are especially cool and comfortable can be made pretty by the use of colored collar, cuffs and

Very many coat dresses are now seen both in the linens and silks, as well as satins. These practical little dresses are cool and extremely comfortable and are easily and quickly adjusted, a thing to be considered in these warm days when such frequent changes of wearing apparel are an absolute necessity to comfort.

Long ribbon streamers of black velvet or Dresden ribbon are seen on many of the midsummer hats. These are carried under the brim, from which they either fall down the back or are brought forward over the left shoulder.

The very latest hats are adorned with wings and some of the models are literally covered with them.

White shoes are having a stronger vogue this summer than they have had for several years. They are very pretty with the white dresses, but still look odd to us when worn with black or navy blue suits, as is often done by those who are strictly following French fashions.

The Shogun's Daughter

By Robert Ames Bennett.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Worth Adams resigns from the United States Navy when on the China station in 1852 and starts back to America in a clipper. The captain of the clipper thinks Japan is about to open her ports to Western trade and runs into Kagoshima Bay. He is driven out, though not before Yoritomo Owari, a Japanese, has smuggled himself aboard that he may go to the West and learn the secrets of our civilization. Adams makes Yoritomo his guest. They return to Japan in May, 1853, before the arrival of Perry and the American ships.

Yoritomo is officially engaged to the Shogun's daughter, but loves a geisha and is determined to sacrifice himself for his country. Adams sees the Shogun's daughter, Azai, and falls in love with her. The attraction is mutual. The travelers, in the disguise of priests, penetrate the country and learn of an attack to be made upon the Shogun's daughter, by Keiki of the Mito clan, an enemy of the house of Owari, who expects to pose as a rescuer and gain great honor. Yoritomo and Adams rescue the girl before Keiki's arrival and are shown much honor. Adams learns that an ancestor of his, Will Adams—a grandnuncle—who was the tojin adviser of one of the Shoguns, left descendants in Japan who intermarried with the Owari. Through the Mito influence the Elder Council try Yoritomo and Adams for treason and condemn them.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Shadow of Death.

WHEN we came out into the portico Satsuma girded on his own sword and, in the face of the hatamoto officials, ordered our swords and dirks to be returned to us. We were in his charge and not yet under sentence. Next he called Yuki, the ronin, before him and commanded that the wounded samurai, left by the brave man from the torture, though fortunately not of a permanent character, disabled him from walking any distance. The Daimio demanded the use of a kago from the hatamotos and ordered that the injured man should be carried before us. With the kago, the hatamotos fetched the sword and dirk which had been taken from Yuki upon his imprisonment.

I jumped to the rash conclusion that the great Daimio would interpose himself between us and our enemies and, if necessary, even defy their court. When we entered one of the lesser Satsuma yashikis within the official quarter, our gaoler-host could not have welcomed us beneath his roof with greater state and warmer hospitality had be been visiting daimios.

I seated myself beside my friend, and waited with such patience as I could command. Yoritomo returned to his prayers. Presently a screen slipped open, and Yuki entered, dressed in new silk garments and already somewhat restored to strength by the food and skillful treatment. Though just roused from the midst of sleep, he came to us smiling, and kowtowed with courtly politeness.

"Ten thousand felicitous years to Yoritomo Sama and to the tojin lord!" he murmured. "Humble thanks are offered to the courageous swordsmen who saved from shame the daughter of Minamoto Ieyoshi my lord!"

"The heart of the brave samurai is loyal even in disgrace!" commended Yoritomo. "Has Satsuma-no-kami yet offered to receive the ronin among his retainers?"

"Offer has not been made, my lord."

"Your parents survive? You have an heir?"

Yuki bowed to each question. Yoritomo nodded and continued: "Blessed is the samurai who can give his life to lift his parents from beggary to honored affluence; whose heir has full cause to stand before the mortuary tablet of his father with grateful reverence! Offer is made to receive the family of Yuki the ronin into the service of Owari."

Yuki kowtowed. "The condescension of my lord is above the acknowledgment of empty words. Command the ronin to return into the hands of the torturers! His gratitude may not be expressed by the sacrifice of mere life."

"Service, not martyrdom, is required," replied Yoritomo. He drew the revolver from his bosom and handed it to the ronin. "Bear this in hiding with the dirk of Satsuma. Tomorrow, when we come from the court, be at hand. If we are led out to execution, follow. Whatever the strength of the executioner's guard, your part is to strike when I call to you; to cut our bonds, and hold back the hatamotos while we make use of dirk and pistol."

"There will be no mistake. Loyal service is the joy of a samurai," responded Yuki.

Yoritomo crossed over to a small writing table, wrote swiftly, and marked the paper with his seal. He returned and handed the writing to the ronin. "At sunrise go with your family to the Superior Yashiki of Owari, and present this to my august father."

Yuki raised the writing to his forehead, kowtowed and withdrew.

"What a man!" I exclaimed in English. "Still suffering from the hellish work of the torturers, yet willing to rush to certain death at a word!"

"Filial piety is the supreme virtue," replied Yoritomo. "He will serve his parents, and assure the survival of his family."

"But why not reward him for what he has already done? He has suffered enough. Why not instead call upon one or more of your own samurais?"

"Their deed would be attributed to my father, and he will have enough to withstand as it is. Upon him alone will rest the burden of barring the return of Mito to power."

Upon him! and he disheartened by the death of your brother and yourself! You see no hope for us, Tomo?"

"Not disheartened, but strengthened by the desire for vengeance. Come, we must rest."

An hour before noon we were roused and waited upon by polite attendants. Having been bathed, dressed and served with food, all with a marked observance of ceremonial leisure, we were ushered out to our waiting norimons. In the portico our host greeted us with utmost gravity, and stated that every effort of Yoritomo's father to reach the Shogun by message or in person had been blocked by Midzuano.

My friend smiled. "It would seem, Nariakira, that I am to go a little sooner than I had expected. Do not grieve for me. You know that I had already given my life for the cause before I came to you in your daimiate. Consider only what effort can be made to save my noble tojin brother."

We entered the yashiki and, having handed over our swords and dirks, were at once conducted before the audience room. To my surprise and relief, the court was convened in an audience chamber, not in the horrible trial room. As before, Midzuano Echizen-no-kami, the Chief of the Council of Elders, sat at the left of the magistrates. Satsuma was ushered to a place of equal honor.

My relief was short-lived. I caught the dull, cold stare of Midzuano. Guards with mancatching hooks and forks closed in behind us. We were led to the sill of the raised floor upon which sat the judges and daimios.

"Knee down! Kowtow!" commanded one of the secretaries.

"To the servants of the Shogun, the servant of the Mikado!" called Yoritomo, kneeling and bowing his forehead to the floor.

I knelt, but sat erect on my heels, a still greater insult to the Shoginate than my friend's naming of the Shogun as the servant of the Mikado. There was an angry murmuring among the judges.

One of the secretaries lifted a scroll to his forehead, and read: "Yoritomo, son of Owari dono: Whereas, contrary to the explicit wording of the ancient edict, you voluntarily departed from the shores of Dai Nippon and returned, bearing the forbidden knowledge of the tojin peoples, the sentence of the Court is that, for this traitorous conduct, you shall be borne to Bell Grove in bonds, there to be bound to a cross and transfixed with spears, and after death your head shall be struck off and exposed on a pole."

In the midst of the hush that followed the reading, Yoritomo smiled, bowed, and called out in a clear voice: "The favor of the high magistrates will be remembered by Owari's heir."

The judges glanced furtively at Midzuano, plainly troubled by the menace beneath the suavely ironical words. The Chief Counselor sat cold and unmoved. Another secretary raised a scroll to his forehead, and read:

"The tojin called Adamisu Woroto: Whereas, contrary to the explicit wording of the ancient edict, you, a tojin, came to the domain of the Sei-i-tai Shogun to spy upon Dai Nippon, and whereas you have confessed to discharging a firearm within the bounds of Yedo, each of which crimes is worthy of death, the sentence of the Court is that you shall be borne to Bell Grove in bonds, there to be boiled to death in oil."

I heard no more of the hideous sentence. The sound of the reader's voice dwindled to a drone like the singing of insects. I swayed forward, dizzy and pallid. To be boiled alive!—I forgot Yuki, but I remembered the revolver in my bosom. A cold fury of despair seized upon me. I would end all, now while I had the chance first to send to hell that corpse-eyed Chief Counselor.

My hands stole in between the folds of my robe. Not a moment too soon to stop me, I heard Yoritomo's piercing whisper: "Wait! Not now—not now!"

Midzuano drew from his sleeve a written scroll and a seal, and called for a brush and ink. One of the secretaries who had remained brought a tray of inks and brushes. Midzuano took up a brush, dipped it in a saucer of freshly ground ink, and unrolled the scroll.

Satsuma turned his powerful face squarely about to the Chief Counselor. "Is Midzuano Echizen-no-kami in such haste to issue the warrant of the Council of Elders confirming the sentence against the prisoners?" he demanded.

"Too great zeal cannot be shown in ridding the land of spies and traitors," replied Midzuano, and he filled in a blank space in the warrant with swift strokes of his brush.

There was a scurry in the anteroom, and a voice cried shrilly: "The barbarians!—the barbarians have come! Woe to Nippon! The black ships enter Yedo Bay!"

Other bells were joining the clamor of their harsher notes to the sonorous thunder from Zosoji.

Without a trace of hesitancy or emotion, Midzuano brought the suspended seal down upon the warrant. The man was a samurai first. He straightened and beckoned to the captain of the hatamoto guard. Perry had come—and in the same hour, this cold-blooded Counselor would drag us out to shameful execution! I began to draw my revolver.

"Wait, brother! Not yet!" entreated Yoritomo, above the thunderous tocsin of the alarm bells.

The captain knelt to receive the warrant. I glanced about to assure myself that the guard was not approaching to seize us. Once in their grip, only Yuki would stand between me and a hideous death. The risk of his failure was too great. I could now be certain of myself and of Midzuano as well.

A hatamoto was approaching us from the rear. I half drew my revolver. A second glance showed me that the man was not one of the guard, but Gengo, the new court chamberlain. He walked arrogantly up the chamber to the place of highest honor, before the tokonoma, raised a scroll to his forehead, and kowtowed with his back to all in the room. Beams and floors were shaking and screens rattling in their slots with the boom of temple bells and the wild clang of firebells in every quarter of Yedo. The alarm was sweeping over the city like a tidal wave. Yet not a man about us stirred. Every eye was fixed upon the messenger of the Shogun.

Gengo rose, faced about, and displayed the great vermilion seal of his master upon the scroll. All in the room, from the humblest samurai among the attendants to the daimios of Satsuma and Echizen, kowtowed before the emblem. Gengo swelled with pride.

"Give heed to the command of His Highness the Tycoon!" he shouted above the booming of the bells, and he cried out the contents of the scroll: "All proceedings against Yoritomo, son of Owari dono, and Woroto Sama the tojin, are annulled. The prisoners are freed within the outermost bounds of Yedo, upon notice of the recognizance of Owari dono. Strict obedience is required. Minamoto Iyeyoshi."

CHAPTER XIX.

The Garden of Azai.

THE draught was a bitter one for Midzuano Echizen-no-kami. He thrust the death warrant into his bosom, bowed punctiliously to Gengo and Satsuma, and rose to depart, with the excuse that he must call a meeting of the Council of Elders to consider the threatened invasion of the barbarians. Gengo the chamberlain withdrew immediately afterwards, too puffed with importance to acknowledge the nod of Satsuma.

The Daimio rose with stately composure, and signed us to follow him. We went out, escorted only by our Satsuma swordbearers and the hatamoto official, who, as bearer of the Daimio's sword, had been restrained by his duty from joining the flight of his fellow-retainers.

A few yards beyond the gateway Yuki was kneeling at the edge of the street-moat to watch us pass. I saw him lean forward and stare at our norimons, then relax and sit back on his heels. He had perceived from the strain upon our bearers that our norimons were occupied. Turning a corner some distance beyond, I looked back and saw the ronin walking after the rear of the procession, with a woman close behind him.

A horseman dashed up the slope after us and drew rein beside our party, with a loud command to halt. The Satsuma men came to a sudden stand. I peered out and saw that the rider was Gengo the court chamberlain. He caught sight of me between the parted curtains and bowed low across the barbed mane of his horse.

"The presence of Woroto Sama is required at the palace," he called.

At a word from me my bearers ranged up alongside the other norimon until I was within arm's length of my friend's out-peering face.

"You heard, Tomo," I said in English. "What does it mean?"

He fixed a keen gaze upon Gengo and demanded: "Does the command include both Woroto Sama and myself?"

Gengo bowed low and he replied: "The honored heir of Owari is still in mourning. The presence of Woroto Sama is alone required."

"At once?"

"Woroto Sama should mount his led-horse."

"You bear a written order?"

"The matter is urgent. Time was lacking to write an order."

Yoritome met my expectant look with an anxious frown. "It is hard to tell, brother," he answered me in English. "Had he brought a written command—Yet in all this wild alarm even the castle must be in a turmoil. They may want your assurance that the Commodore comes in peace."

"Any risk to tell them that!" I cried, and I called to my escort: "Open! Fetch sandals and my led-horse!"

In the confusion of my quick scramble out of the norimon and into the high-peaked saddle, some one pressed a little square of paper into my hand. As I set my feet deep in the huge stirrups I looked about, and saw Yuki slipping out from among the Satsuma men. Gengo was wheeling around the other way. My fiery little stallion plunged free from his grooms and to gain a better grip of the bridle I thrust Yuki's note into my bosom.

A scant minute brought us to the bridge of the Sakaraida Gate. A daimio's procession was coming down to the bridge from the east. Regardless of its standards we cut in ahead and galloped across the bridge.

The thought flashed upon me that in the heat and excitement of the panic the sight of my tojin eyes might cause the blades of other assassins to leap from their scabbards, or at best cause serious delays in our advance. I squinted my eyes and followed Gengo with my chin on my breast. Though the gate watch had been doubled, neither my height nor the whiteness of my forehead was noticed by the crowd of chattering hatamotos through which we forced our way under the great gateway, across the court and below the inner gateway on the right.

As we issued into a broad plaza within Gengo turned on his heel. For a moment I fancied I saw chagrin and bitter disappointment in his narrow eyes. But then his face shone with the blandest of smiles and I told myself I had been deceived by the gathering twilight.

"Woroto Sama is wise to walk humbly," he whispered. "Let him continue so and he will be conducted safely past all these."

After a few minutes we came to a small pagoda-roofed kiosk, or summer house, in the midst of a grove of knarled old cherry trees. It was the first building I had seen in the garden, though more than once I had heard voices, which led me to believe that we had passed other houses. Gengo stopped at the edge of the kiosk veranda and kowtowed.

"Woroto Sama will be pleased to wait here," he said.

Before I could reply he hurried on along the path. Within the toss of a biscuit he turned a bend and disappeared.

I paced half way to the next turn and back again, observing with surprise that objects were still distinctly visible even in the shadow of the coppice. We had come so quickly from where I had parted with Yoritomo that a full quarter-hour of twilight yet remained. Gengo could not miss his way for lack of light. Again I paced towards the turn and back. As I rounded the kiosk I glanced down the path by which we had come. At the last bend stood an armored hatamoto with drawn sword.

My first thought was that the man must be a foreguard of the Shogun. I waved my hand to him. In the same instant he whirled up his sword and called fiercely: "The tojin! the tojin!—At the kiosk! Upon him!"

"Kill the barbarian! kill! kill!" yelled voices behind him, and as the leader rushed towards me other swordsmen charged around the bend after him, half a score or more in the first bunch.

Between revolver and sword I might possibly have checked and stood off that number, but still others spilled in the path behind them—and there was utmost need to avoid a clash with the Shogun's retainers. I turned and ran up the path, hoping to overtake Gengo. The hatamoto redoubled their yells and dashed after me. I twisted around the turn and saw before me, less than a hundred yards away, a number of lancemen charging to cut off my retreat.

The silent stealth of this rear attack was more appalling than the open charge of the other party. Had these lancemen come a few seconds sooner I would have been taken by surprise and pierced by their long shafts without warning. Even as it was I had no time for second thought. At the view-ory of the lancemen I leaped the hedge of clipped privet on my right and plunged straight into the coppice beyond.

I kept straight on, trusting to the gathering gloom to hide the traces of my flight, and to the noise of the pursuit to drown the thud of my iron-shod sandals on the turf. Had the coppice continued I might have gained enough to slip around one of their flanks and make my way back by the path, out of the enclosure.

But within fifty yards I burst out of the thicket into an open garden that lay about a large lotus pond. Upon an island in the center of the pond stook a kiosk, approached from the left end of the pond over a narrow high-arched bridge of bamboo. Beyond, towering high among the tree tops, rose the white roof-crest of a large edifice. Beneath that crest there was a possibility that I might find a palace official able and willing to check my pursuers and conduct me to the Shogun.

As I gained the top of the bridge I saw a woman dart from the far end into the kiosk. But the foremost of my pursuers were already at the pond bank and I whirled about, with drawn revolver, to face them, for all their fierce eagerness the sight of the threatening muzzle brought them to a halt. They had heard of the defeat of the ronins. The leaders checked those who followed, and all gathered at the foot of the bridge, yelling imprecations at the tojin.

"Murderers," I shouted, "set foot on this bridge and you die! Your master the Shogun sent for me. He waits for me now. Go, fetch Gengo the chamberlain."

I sighted my revolver at the foremost. But before I could fire several pointed up and cried to their fellows: "Hold! hold!"

A moment later all were kneeling, even those in the shallow water of the pond. Something brushed softly against my sleeve. I turned half about. Beside

e Food Commissioner Cutler has traveled miles about the State in the two and a ears during which he has held office and stroyed many tons of food unfit for human mption. That he has found and is finding ch to do in this line suggests the question er it might not be possible to bring the sibility of our daily food providers home m more effectively. The duty of providing istributing food for the consumption of the s is without doubt one of the most import- g these days of great cities when millions ople depend for health and strength upon onesty of those who raise and handle food cts.

AN INDUSTRIAL PRIZE.

Invited by the Post-Dispatch to give consideration to the advantages of St. Louis as the point to which it should remove its great printing press plant, General Manager Roesen of R. Hoe & Co. has promised serious consideration. Representatives of the Business Men's League and the Wabash Railroad will meet Robert Hoe today for the conference arranged by the Post-Dispatch representative. This puts St. Louis squarely in the competition on the merits it has. Chicago, Detroit and Buffalo are its chief competitors from the dozens of cities, big and little, whose industrial ambitions have been stirred by the announcement that the Hoe plant was to be removed.

St. Louis will have no better opportunity to test the power of its industrial advantages to attract established or new enterprises. Blazoned from illuminated signs in half a dozen cities the fact that "St. Louis has the goods" has drawn sardonic comment from their newspapers. There is a boast in the slogan. St. Louis must see that it is not an idle one. Unclassic, slangy or vulgar, as has been charged, just now it has the inspiration of a battle cry. It must be lived up to.

The Hoe company is a prize to fight for. It is the largest printing press factory in the world. It has a capital stock of more than $5,000,000. It does a business in excess of $6,000,000 a year. It employes 2500 men and wishes to expand. Its weekly pay roll approximates $40,000. Its employes are high class, skilled mechanics. It is the kind of industry desirable from every viewpoint. It is the kind St. Louis particularly wants. It is apparently the kind that many other cities want.

It cannot be secured without earnest, persistent effort. Almost as great a victory as the winning of the plant will be the test of St. Louis' ability to win when the competition is keen. The contest is bound to bring us information of value. If we win and fail to learn what it was that caused the winning it will be but half a victory. If we lose and learn why we lost, the defeat will not be complete. If we learn why we lost, if we lose, and correct the disadvantages we are under, we may take defeat philosophically. It will not be without profit.

But whatever happens let it be known that St. Louis made the fight. Let it be made impressive that St. Louis is always ready for such a fight and a contender for every industrial prize.

White, a bribee in the Lorimer case, presented to the investigating committee credentials from a business college attesting his veracity. It wasn't much, considering the bribe, but something more than Hines has offered.

THE CANADIAN ELECTIONS.

The British system of parliamentary government has long admitted of something very like what we call the referendum. Any British administration can take an appeal to the country upon a question of importance by obtaining a dissolution of parliament. The electors then have the opportunity to pronounce judgment upon the matter at issue in the most [illegible] fashion. The Canadians have the British system in all its essential features and Sir Wilfred Laurier is doing nothing extraordinary in asking the Canadian voters to express their opinion of reciprocity.

Americans who are familiar with the political history of Canada during the last half century are well aware of the fact that opposition to reciprocity was no part of Conservative policy during the long period when Sir John A. Macdonald so successfully led that party. His devotion to a protective tariff never carried him to any such lengths. From 1854 to 1866 there was a reciprocity agreement between the Canadian provinces and the United States and during much of that period Sir John A. Macdonald was in office and saw all the benefits to both countries which resulted from a free interchange of products. Sir Wilfred Laurier is quite right in saying that ever since the termination of the treaty of 1854, all public men of any prominence in Canada have been unanimous in the attempt to again secure a similar agreement with the United States.

There can scarcely be a doubt that Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government will carry the Dominion on this issue and renew a trade policy that was once so mutually beneficial.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley is now engaged in the mild and pleasant task of determining "What is beer." Should there be any dearth of expert testimony, the doctor can find men here whose knowledge of beer is a perfect blend of theory and practice.

OKLAHOMAISM RUN MAD.

"The Judges, both of the supreme and inferior courts" says the Federal constitution, "shall hold their offices during good behavior." Behavior not answering that description is determined and punished through impeachment proceedings in the Senate.

Senator Owen of Oklahoma was heard yesterday in defense of his proposal to amend the constitution so that a majority of voters of any election may "recall" a justice of any Federal court.

There is no immediate danger that such a wild proposal will pass Congress and receive the ratification of three-fourths of the votes. Yet it cannot be treated as a joke or as wholly an academic folly.

Mr. Owen represents a new State which has already 1,657,155 inhabitants. The radical proceedure he proposes is permitted and practiced in Oregon. Recently a petition was presented to the Oregon Secretary of State for a recall vote on Judge Coke for having "demonstrated his gross incompetency by giving to the jury * * * * unfair and erroneous instructions as to the law."

Is the average citizen of Oregon competent to revise Judge Coke's interpretation of the law? If we had the Owen amendment now, would citizens dissatisfied with, say, the Standard Oil decision, read through the huge volumes of printed testimony upon which it is based, to say nothing of examining legal precedents, then render a decision upon the "gross incompetency" of our Supreme Court Justices?

The Senate has never yet lacked gre[illegible] lawyers competent to act in impeachment proceedings. The people are not competent for such determinations. They have for their own protection set bonds and bounds to their own power. What shall be said when great states sweep away these time-tried safeguards and when public men of ability strive for popular favor by competitive demagogy?

John D. Rockefeller has admitted that great wealth is a burden; that it destroys the real zest of life and banishes peace from the heart. He confessed it after hearing the sermon of an Oklahoma City minister who preached in the Euclid Avenue Baptist Church, Cleveland. The same thoughts were probably inspired by the words of the Supreme Court of the United States.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

In an Emergency.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The death of Mr. Nugent is an object lesson. Every chauffeur, police officer and reporter should have a vest pocket booklet indicating the office hours of every downtown physician and surgeon, and especially those doctors who can be found at night. Waiting for an ambulance is a very tedious matter when relief is at hand by referring to the booklet indicating the street and time when a doctor can be found. READER.

Casey Jones Is Dead.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In a recent issue of your paper a Tennessee lady claims to be the wife of a living "Casey" Jones and at that rate it must be "Casey" No. 2. I am a native of Memphis, Tenn., and would like to say a word or two in regard to one particular engineer who has been instrumental in immortalising the locomotive, as Mark Twain immortalized the steamboat. That man was John Luther Jones, better known from coast to coast as "Casey" Jones. He was born in Cayce, Kentucky, in 1863, and spent his boyhood days on a Kentucky farm. When he was 19 years of age he fired a locomotive on the Mobile & Ohio Railroad and later occupied a position of similar nature on the Illinois Central. In 1890 he was promoted to the position of engineer, which place he held with honor until his death. He was transferred from Water Valley, Miss., to Memphis, Tenn., and ran a freight train there until he was eligible to the Chicago & New Orleans Limited, and it was on this midnight run on March 18, 1900, that he lost his life in a rear end collision with a freight train at Vaughns, Miss.

By his amiable disposition and smiling face he had friends by the hundreds. The song bearing his name was written and sung by an old roundhouse darky by the name of Wallace Sanders. By the merry jingle of the song it is evident the author never knew trouble or sorrow, for he turns a house of sorrow into a gay carnival.

I can call to mind many kindnesses performed by Jones. It is no more than right that such a man should not be forgotten so easily. His two brothers, Eugene and Philip Jones, are also locomotive engineers and from last accounts were running engines on the Illinois Central from Mounds, Ill., to Jackson, Tenn.

No Medical Monopoly

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

If there is no Doctor Trust why is it that the medical laws in many states have been stealthily amended so as to create a monopoly in favor of certain schools of medicine? If there is no studied attempt to crush competition, for what reason are drugless healers and mental practitioners hounded, fined and jailed for no offense or crime but that they dare to cure the sick by advanced methods? The recent arrest of a teacher of hydropathy (water cure) was an outrage to the city of St. Louis as an enlightened community. There are pertinent questions to the issue of a national department of health, and we should go slow before committing ourselves to a paternalistic scheme for concentrating all medical powers in the hands of certain doctors who, according to one of their number in a recent speech, will subdivide the country and cities into "health districts, and a certain doctor of their school to each section, whom the sick must take whether they want him or not."

Whenever the people themselves ask for a national health board, as they are now expressing their will in regard to income tax, direct election of senators, referendum, public ownership, etc., then it will be time enough to consider so vast a project as the nationalizing of the administration of health regulations. In the meantime let the healing art (for it is as yet only an art and not by any means an exact science), develop under the stimulus of rational freedom, without police interference or persecution. More Public Swimming Pools.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

While enjoying a swim at the cheerfully lighted and orderly public bath house at 7th and Soulard—one of two places only which the city has yet established—it seemed to me that we are in great need of more such places near or on the river front. I wish to speak especially in behalf of Carondelet. In the crowd I saw there recently were women and girls representing several nationalities, some having come from several points in the south end of town. There were a number from Carondelet and even three little sun-burned girls from Luxenburg, who had ridden four miles on the Broadway car to get a swim and bath and all these were eager to learn to swim—from the factory girl who was putting in her vacation at it, to the tots of three and four, looking so cute and important in dark blue suits. Girls though just as anxious for it are kept at home, while boys go anyway, with or without their parents' permission, to swim in the river, oftentimes dangerous places at the foot of Kraus or Elwood streets. From my window any day can be seen distant flesh-colored specks bobbing about—boys swimming off the sand bar in the middle of the river.

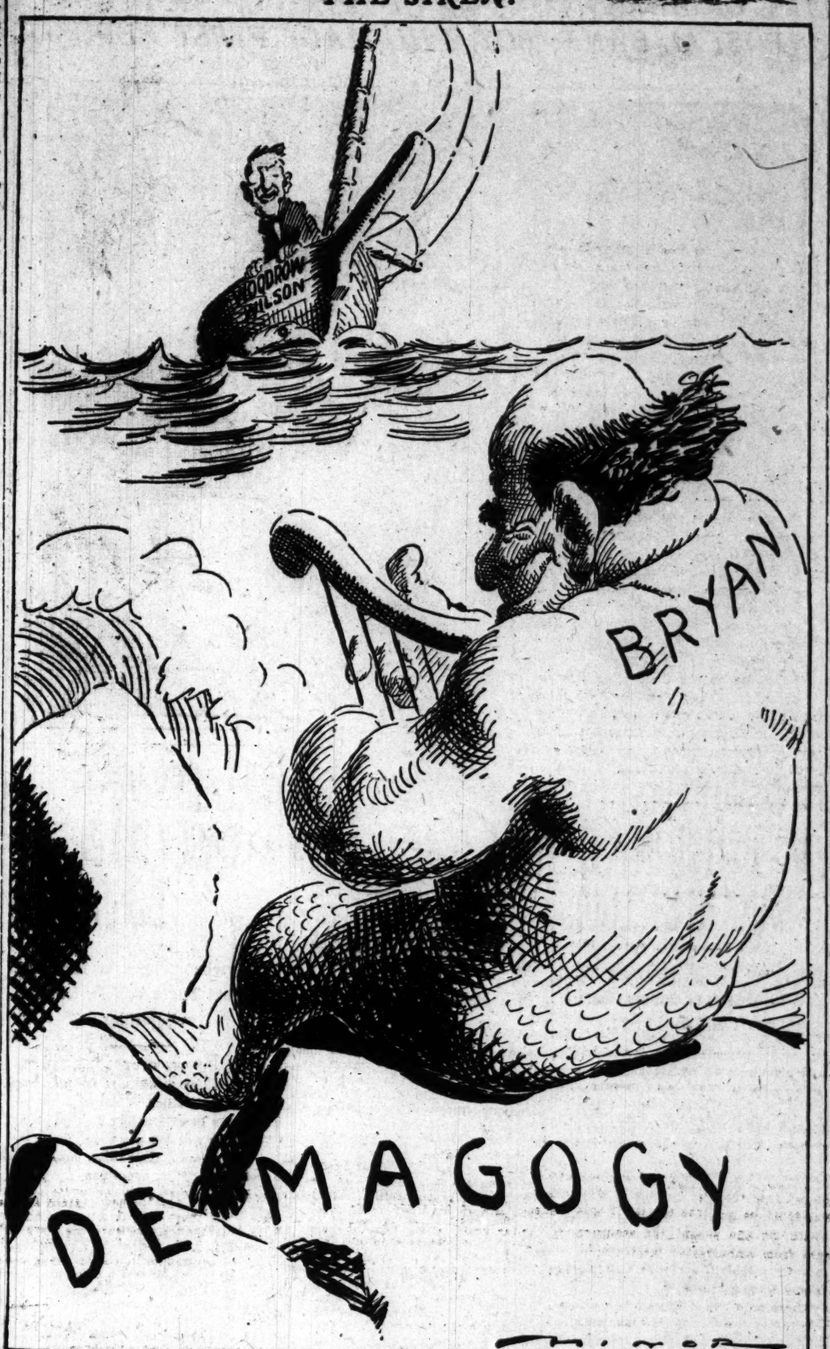

This part of town needs emphatically not only a bathhouse, but a Y. M. C. A. and a public playground. Where is the public spirit down here to see that Carondelet gets what her people need.

THE SIREN.

BEING SWORN.

From Law Times.

A Chinese has been thus sworn in: On entering the box the witness immediately knelt down and a china saucer having been placed in his hand he broke it. The officer of the court through an interpreter then addressed him thus: "You shall tell the truth and the whole truth, and if you do not tell the truth your soul will be cracked like the saucer." A Mahometan witness first placed his right hand on the Koran, put the other hand to his forehead and brought the top of his forehead down to the book and touched it with his head. He then looked for some time upon it, and being asked what effect that ceremony was to produce answered that he was bound by it to speak the truth. The deposition of a Gentoo has been received who touched with his hand the foot of a Brahmin. Buddhists have been sworn by "the three holy exigencies—Buddha, Dhamma and Pro Sangha—and the Devotees of the 22 firmaments," and a Parsee on the Zend Avesta, or by binding a "holy cord" round his body.

THE TUBERCULOSIS RAVAGE.

From the Cleveland Press.

Last year there died in the United States of pulmonary tuberculosis about 180,000 people! Multiply this number by three and a fraction—the ratio of India's population to our own—and you will find that these terrible figures covering the loss of life from the plague in India, when analysed, show that out of a thousand men, women and children in the United States, practically as many die of consumption in the ordinary year as died of the plague in India during the past six months of epidemic.

It really seems as if civilized America ought to be able to do a little better than that!

Plain Course Indicated.

From the Woodstock (Ont.) Sentinel-Review.

"Under all the circumstances there seems no reason for doubt as to the proper course for the Government to pursue. It is committed to the passing of the reciprocity agreement. It is bound to keep faith with the American Government; it is bound to keep faith with the Canadian people. The responsibility for forcing an appeal to the people will be squarely placed on the shoulders of the opposition."

Lorimer's Supporters.

From the New York Tribune.

If the three or four hundred Lorimer adherents who hold indignation meetings in various parts of the city are to be believed, they are the only "fair minded, unprejudiced and thoughtful" citizens in Illinois.

Hasn't Gone Up.

Could Speak for Himself.

While trying a case over at Vienna, Mo., the other day, Jack Slate, former prosecuting attorney, cross-examined a good-for-nothing young fellow.

"What do you do for a living?" he asked.

"Nothing," said the witness.

"Just as I thought. You are one of the town loafers, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Your father is another of them isn't he?"

The witness laughed.

"I can't say as to that," he said, "but he is sitting over there in the jury box, and you can ask him yourself."

That settled both Jack and his case.—Jefferson City Democrat-Tribune.

The Good Old Days.

In 1828, a company of progressive young men wanted to discuss the subjects of railroads and telegraph, and asked permission of the school board of Lancaster, O., to use the public schoolhouse. Their request was refused, the School Board using this language:

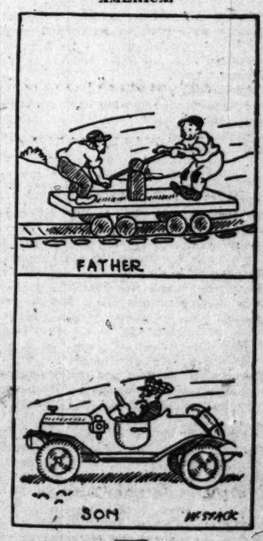

"You are welcome to use the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God has designed that His intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of 15 miles an hour by steam, He would have clearly foretold it through his holy prophets. It is a device of Satan to lead immortal souls to hell."—Dunklin County (Mo.) Democrat.

Deceived.

A lawyer made a hard fight for a client who was charged with stealing $15.40 from the cash drawer of a saloon, and succeeded in having him acquitted. "Now," he said, "how are you going to raise some money for me for getting you out of this?" The defendant grinned in the bland manner of the innocent. "I've still got that sixteen fifty," he said. "You infernal scoundrel," exclaimed the lawyer, "I thought you were the accent. Hand it right over."—Lamar (Mo.) Democrat.

Su Atento Servidor, ——.

TAILOR.—Don't eat acid fruits with other foods; don't use milk and sugar with them. Orange juice has been recommended for the blood. Lemon juice is said to be useful in uric acid diseases. Ripe raw apples are praised. Should be chewed well.

MRS. R.—To keep okra for winter use: Take the vegetable when green, slice it into round discs and put them in the sun. After the pods have dried out thoroughly string them in rows as you would small red peppers and keep them in a dry place until you are ready to use them in soup.

MABEL.—Evening is the time between sunset and darkness; in common usage, the latter part of the afternoon and earlier part of night before bedtime. In England and southern United States the term is applied to the time between noon and dark including afternoon and twilight.

A. Z.—Tenants of flats should not in any way annoy each other. If the landlord has not prevented chickens, dogs and garbage carelessness in the yard, talk to him, and if he does nothing, move into some flat which will be guaranteed, in writing, to be free from nuisances, otherwise rent not to be paid.

ANXIOUS.—First cousins marry in Alabama, California, Colorado, Connecticut, the Carolinas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Vermont, West Virginia, Wisconsin.

PERISHABLE.—According to the report of Doctors John Gellwey and John M. Williamson of the autopsies made by them on the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair in September, 1903, Mr. and Mrs. Fair were killed in an automobile accident in France in August of that year. The report of the doctors is that Mrs. Fair was instantly killed and could not have survived her husband.

ELMER.—Hot tamales: Boil 2 pounds lean beef until tender; when cold grind fine. Remove seeds from pint chili peppers; put them on in cold water to cover and bring slowly to boil; but do not boil. Skim out peppers, cool and chop fine; mix meat, peppers, teaspoonful of cumino seed well mashed, teaspoonful minced garlic; salt to taste. Scald pint cornmeal with water in which peppers were cooked. Cut corn shucks in pieces about 2 inches wide, 4 long; spread a little meal on one, lay spoonful of mixture on this and roll up, folding ends securely. Steam two hours, keeping water boiling.

SHERMAN.—There being no children and no debts, write: I, John Jay, of the City of St. Louis, State of Missouri, being of sound mind and memory, do make, declare and publish this, my last will and testament. I give and bequeath unto my beloved wife, Jane, all my property, real and personal, of every description. I do nominate and appoint James Johnson to be the executor of this my last will and testament. Signed, sealed, declared and published in the presence of John Jones, residing at ——; Samuel Smith, residing at ——; Boniface Brown, residing at ——. (Two witnesses are sufficient.) We do not guarantee any form of will.

VIRGINIA.—Gentlemen should be presented to ladies; say "Miss Brookes, allow me to present Mr. Flanders." Young men should be presented to elderly men. Young women should be presented to elderly women. The name you speak first is the name of the one to whom you present; the name last spoken is the name of the one presented. A lady of any age, when introduced to a lady, may signify his pleasure by amiable phrase, as, "I am pleased (or happy) to meet you, Miss Blank." Her response is, "I am glad to see you," or "You are very kind, Mr. Blanker," or "The pleasure is mutual." Don't offer hand to lady unless first extends hers.

REBELS IN CUBA TAKE THE FIELD AGAINST GOMEZ

Gen. Acevedo, Who Started Former Insurrection Which Resulted in His Sentence to Imprisonment for Life Leads Band of More Than 200.

WAS FREED BY PARDON ONLY SHORT TIME AGO

President of Republic Given 15 Days in Which to Resign by Men Who Threaten to Devastate Country if He Does Not Meet Their Demands.

By Associated Press.

HAVANA, Aug. 1.—An uprising against the Government, apparently of a serious character, occurred last night at Regla, a suburb of Havana, across the harbor, when Gen. Guillermo Acevedo, a revolutionary veteran with eight or ten companions, armed and mounted, took the field. It is reported that the party was reinforced later by 200 men.

Before leaving Regla, Acevedo issued a manifesto denouncing the administration of President Gomez as scandalous and corrupt and adjuring all patriotic Cubans to rise and overthrow it. He declared that he would give Gomez fifteen days in which to resign, after which, if the warning was not obeyed, he intended to apply the torch and destroy property indiscriminately until the whole island was reduced to ashes.

First Man Killed.

Setting forth from Regla, the insurgents skirted Havana, seemingly bound for Pinar del Rio. They halted at the suburb of Luyano, where they seized a citizen named Naranjo, demanding that he act as their guide. Upon his refusal, Naranjo was shot dead. The party then rode on.

Early today strong detachments of rurales and regulars were dispatched in pursuit of the rebels. The country in which they are operating is thickly settled and it is probable that the rurales will have no difficulty in following the trail. There are rumors that a fight has already taken place.

Acevedo headed an uprising in Pinar del Rio province a year ago. He was captured, tried and sentenced to life imprisonment. Last October he was pardoned. His followers are believed to include some of the desperadoes who attacked the rurales in their barracks at Guanabacoa in 1906, massacreing the garrison, which was the first overt act of the revolution which overthrew President Palma.

ABERCROMBIE RENEWS EXECUTORSHIP FIGHT

Files Mandamus Suit to Compel His Appointment in the Robison Estate.

Fred N. Abercrombie filed a mandamus suit in the Circuit Court Tuesday against Probate Judge Holtcamp, asking that he be compelled to appoint Abercrombie executor of the estate of Martin Stanford Robison, who was the owner of the Cardinals.

The suit follows an unsuccessful attempt of Abercrombie to have Judge Holtcamp appoint his executor and a similar attempt of Public Administrator Troll to have himself appointed.

Abercrombie was named in Robison's will, but he resigned on account of nonresidence. Later he reconsidered. In the meantime Judge Holtcamp had appointed E. A. Steininger as administrator of the estate in Missouri. Steininger is now acting in that capacity and is president of the Cardinals. Abercrombie recently filed a mandamus proceeding in the Supreme Court, but it was dismissed without prejudice.

CO-RECEIVER SELECTED

Goodfellow to Help Straighten Desnopers' Affairs.

At a conference of legal representatives of the largest creditors of the Desnoyers Shoe Company, the concern's receiver, the Sangamon Loan and Trust Company of Springfield and Ridgely Hudson, at whose instance the bankruptcy proceedings were instituted in Springfield, Joseph S. Goodfellow of St. Louis, was agreed upon for appointment by Judge Humphrey of the United States District Court as co-receiver. The conference was held Monday afternoon in Springfield.

Goodfellow will report to Judge Humphrey today, when it is expected that the order will be entered. His bond will be $25,000.

LINE OF DEPOSITORS AT OPENING OF ST. LOUIS POSTAL BANK; BOY WHO MADE FIRST DEPOSIT

NEWSBOY FIRST DEPOSITOR IN P. O. BANK IN ST. LOUIS

Benjamin Huwe, Drawing With 4 Other Paper Sellers, Gets No. 1 and Puts in $2.

Benjamin Huwe, of 3112 Magnolia avenue, a newsboy at Grand avenue and Arsenal street, was the first depositor in the postal savings bank when it opened for business in the postoffice at 8 a. m. Tuesday. He deposited $2, receiving certificate No. 1.

A crowd of 50 men and boys were waiting for the opening of the bank, the first arrival being at 4 a. m., when Marshall E. Schramm, 12 years old, a newsboy, arrived at the postoffice steps with his breakfast. He wanted to be No. 1, but arrangements had been made by which five newsboys drew lots to determine the order of their deposits.

Huwe drew No. 1. Milford E. Schacht, who sells papers at Marcus and St. Louis avenues, was No. 2. Schramm was No. 3. Ralph Guinner, 11 years old, who has the Maryland Hotel corner, was No. 4, and Stephen Meyer, 11, was No. 5. He sells at Sarah street and St. Louis avenues.

Boys at Head of Line.

The boys were given places at the head of the line and made their deposits in order of their numbers.

The St. Louis bank is the first postal savings institution to be opened in a large city, though many have been in operation in small cities and towns for several months.

Postmaster Akins selected a corner of the money order division of the postoffice for the bank, and placed Albert Avtenreith, superintendent of the money order division, in charge.

$100 a Month Is Limit.

Under the law any person over the age of 10 years may deposit any amount between $1 and $100, though fractions of a dollar will not be accepted. However, stamps may be bought for 10 cents each and when the total number reaches 10 a certificate of deposit for $1 will be issued. No person is permitted to deposit more than $100 in one month, and no person is permitted to have more than $600 on deposit at one time. Interest at the rate of 2 per cent will be paid on deposits.

Depositors may at any time exchange deposits for Government bonds in denominations of $20, $40, $60, $80 or $100, paying 2½ per cent interest.

Frank Pondelak of 1220 Armstrong avenue was at the Postmaster's office at 7:30, asking permission to be depositor No. 1. When told No. 1 was already taken, he asked to be No. 18.

Wants 13 and Gets It.

The clerks could not give him a position in line, but he remained at the window and when certificate No. 12 was issued brushed the next man aside and laid down $13. Certificate No. 13 was issued to him.

"Thirteen always was a lucky number for me," he declared.

Henry J. Diesing of 3444 Ohio avenue asked for No. 23. He remained close to the window and got it.

John H. O'Donnell, a member of Engine Company 14, at Fifteenth and Market streets, wanted Certificate 14, and got it.

There were depositors at the bank windows all morning. The bank will be open for business from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. each day except Sunday.

"COPY" STANDS AT 2 A. M. TO DEPOSIT

Wanted to Be First to Put His Savings in Chicago Postoffice.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—"Mike" Phelan, 17 years old, a copy boy, whose duties are to carry manuscript from the editorial to the composing room and run errands on a morning newspaper, vows he will be the first depositor in the new advertised to open for business today.

Mike, who took his stand at 2 a. m., in front of the doors of the bank in the main postoffice, volunteered the information that his deposit would be $5.

"I never saved my money before," he said; "but I'm going to now. I know it'll be safe. I think every fellow should save money. An empty pocket don't get nothing, but a guy with money can get a lot he don't have to pay for. I'm getting old, and I'll need money when I can't work.

"My father and mother are gettin' old, too. When they get too old, I want to have money to take care of 'em. I've got four sisters and two brothers and seein' I'm the oldest of the family, I got to set an example."

WIFE AND CHILDREN GET 30 CENTS A DAY

Husband Keeps Three-Fifths of His Pay for His Own Use.

A vagrant's a man who takes more than three-fifths of all he earns to support himself and lets his wife and children struggle on the two-fifths minus. This was decided in Judge Miller's division of the Court of Criminal Correction Monday in the case of George Hahn of 1043 South Leffingwell avenue.

Hahn was arrested and charged with being a vagrant on complaint of his wife that he was not properly supporting her and her five children, who live at 3956A Sarpy avenue.

"Why, Your Honor," said Hahn in defense," I make $50 a month and I only keep $35 of it for myself. I give her and the children $15 every month."

The Judge said he would give Hahn six months in the workhouse to figure out a better division of his salary.

Then the wife interposed an objection to letting the problem go so long unsolved. She said her husband's monthly pay day would arrive next Friday and she requested the Judge to teach him how to do the sum at once.

"Well," said the Judge, "you give your wife $20 Friday."

Twenty dollars is two-fifths of Hahn's salary. That leaves him three-fifths for himself. If the wife and children share equally in the two-fifths they will each have $3.33 1-3 cents for support for a month, or a trifle more than 30 cents a day.

VILLAGES VOTE EARLY ON THE BOND ISSUE

Everywhere There Is Indication That There Will Be Little Opposition.

JEFFERSON CITY, Aug. 1.—That Central Missouri will give the new State capitol proposition a strong lead was decidedly in evidence at 1 p. m. today. The cities and villages were getting out a larger vote than was anticipated, with very little opposition anywhere. More than half of the vote of Jefferson City was in at noon, and out of about 1800 votes polled, but two, one of them doubtless an error, were cast against the bond propositon. The county has a voting strength of above 5000, but owing to rain a full vote is not expected in the more remote rural districts.

It is believed, however, that there will not be a dozen votes against the proposition in Cole County. Telephone messages and telegrams from half a dozen of the counties comprising the Eighth Congressional District at noon indicated a light vote, save perhaps in Columbia, and very little opposition to the new capitol, particularly in the cities.

STEPHEN HART QUITS

Leaves Publishing Concern to Go With Grocers.

Stephen Hart, secretary and treasurer of the Tradesmen's Publishing Co. of 1627 Washington avenue, publishers of The Drygoodsman and of the Shoe and Leather Gazette, has resigned, having been chosen secretary and treasurer of Dickinson & Co., growers and packers of corn and other farm products.

Hart has been made a director of the company and will have charge of the selling and advertising departments of the business. He will make his headquarters at Eureka, Ill., which is not far from Peoria. Hart has been connected with the Tradesmen's Publishing Co. for nearly ten years.

8 PATIENTS DIE IN ASYLUM FIRE; NURSES SAVE 800

Insane at Hamilton, Ont., Stunned by Blows and Dropped Into Life Nets.

PERISH IN THE CELLS

Building on a Mountain Destroyed While Help Struggles Up Steep Mountain.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HAMILTON, Ontario, Aug. 1.—Eight lives were lost and 800 patients were saved when the buildings of the insane asylum burned on the mountain side southwest of here early today. Only the splendid coolness and bravery of the attendants and nurses under Dr. English averted a more frightful loss of life.

While firefighters from the city were toiling up the almost precipitous road from Hamilton, the asylum guards fought in the blazing corridors with the desperate insane, felling them with clubs to carry them out. Some of the patients broke away from their protectors when taken outside, and ran back to their cells, where they burned to death.

There are four buildings in the group within the asylum grounds. The main building where the fire occurred is a four-story brick structure with basement, 200 feet in length and about 70 feet wide, with wings at either end.

The women patients, numbering about 350, occupied quarters in the west wing. The remainder of the building was taken up with men's wards and contained some of the most desperate cases in the asylum.

Run Back Into Fire.

The women were removed without serious difficulty to the adjoining buildings. The situation among the men was more serious. The fire broke out on the fourth floor in what is known as Section D, where the violent insane are kept.

The most of the men, guarded by attendants, moved down three flights of stairs out of the fire zone in orderly procession, but about a score, driven into a frenzy by the stifling smoke and the excitement of a midnight fire, fought off their rescuers with desperate fury.

Three of them, after being carried down to the second floor, broke away and fled back to the blazing corridors.

The flames in the meantime had spread down the hallway and were eating their way through the floor to the third story. The asylum brigade, although fighting bravely, were handicapped by the maniacs and were losing control.

The city brigade which had been summoned, was then toiling up the almost precipitous roadway leading to the asylum grounds. It was nearly 2 o'clock before the first of their apparatus was brought into play.

Firemen Break Through Bars.

The firemen ran scaling ladders up to the third and fourth floor windows, where it was believed some of the unfortunates had fled. They found it difficult work to break down the iron gratings on the windows, and the fire in the meantime was growing fiercer every minute. Crawling into the stifling smoke the firemen groped their way about until they found a maniac. He was still able to offer resistance, and it was necessary to knock him senseless when he was thrown into the life nets below.

The combined fire forces had the situation well in hand by 3:30 a. m. The two upper floors and the roof of the east wing were burned and the lower floors were flooded with water. As the firemen worked their way into the burned section, bodies were found.

Three were in the hallway on the top floor, and one helpless paralytic was burned to death in his cell. Four more corpses were found huddled together in a small room.

At dawn a systematic checking up of the inmates was begun, and it was found that between 10 and 12 men were missing. It was thought probable that some of these had escaped, and were still at large in the surrounding fields.

POST-DISPATCH AD FINDS $150 DIAMOND

Woman Recovers Lost Stone Which Could Easily Have Been Sold Without Detection.

With one insertion of an advertisement in the "Lost" column of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, Mrs. G. W. Read, of the Rappahannock Apartments, recovered a one-karat diamond she lost out of a setting last Tuesday. In telling a Post-Dispatch reporter about it Monday afternoon she said:

"I am so pleased over the recovery of my diamond, that I wanted to call you up, and tell you that the return was made to me solely through the Post-Dispatch.

"When I had the advertisement inserted I had no idea that I would ever see the diamond, for diamonds have a stipulated value everywhere, and there was no mark of identification on the one I lost."

Mrs. Read lost the diamond last Tuesday morning as she was returning to her home from a shopping trip in the downtown district. Wednesday she inserted the advertisement, and the next day the diamond was returned to her by E. M. Alch, 5395 Von Versen avenue.

Woman Air Navigator Wins Pilot's License

Miss Harriet Quimby, in Test Flight Breaks World's Landing Record.

MISS HARRIET QUIMBY.

By Associated Press.

HAMPSTEAD, L. I., Aug. 1.—A pilot's license was awarded Miss Harriet Quimby today by the Aero Club of America, the governing body of aeronautics in this country. This is the first license that has ever been awarded a woman aviator in America. Miss Quimby flew in a Moissant monoplane.

Miss Quimby and the aero officials, G. Campbell Wood and Baron D'Oroy and a large number of aviation enthusiasts were on the field shortly before 5 o'clock this morning, but a dense fog made flying impossible until a few minutes before 7 o'clock.

Miss Quimby rose gracefully in the air completing five figure eights about one hundred and fifty feet in the air and then landed, not only within the 164-foot mark designated by the conditions, but also made a world's record for landing. Her mark was 7 feet 9 inches.

After a brief rest to cool off the motor Miss Quimby again rose in the air and again completed all the remaining figure eights in the air, turning first to right and left with all the skill of an experienced aviator, and landing on her descent at the 124-foot mark. Miss Quimby then started for the altitude, which calls for a height of 164 feet. She reached over 200 feet and soared about in a large circle before coming to the ground, where she was enthusiastically greeted.

Miss Quimby is a native of California. Miss Matilda Moissant and probably Miss Blanche Scott will shortly apply for pilots' licenses.

VAGRANCY WARRANT IS OUT FOR PICKEL

He Is Accused by Wife of Having Failed to Support Her.

A warrant charging vagrancy was issued Monday evening against Fred J. Pickel of 3722 Delmar boulevard, whose wife, Ella Mullholland Pickel, is suing him for separate maintenance. Judge Muench some time ago awarded her $100 a month alimony.

Mrs. Pickel says her husband is not contributing to her support or that of her child. He transferred his stock in the Pickel Marble Co. to his father, she alleges, and an action to force him to support his wife and child is now pending in court.

Pickel is said to be out of the city. The warrant will be served upon him as soon as he is found.

DOUBLE LICENSE FOR ONE MARRIAGE

Couple Spent Carfare and Extra Money to Keep Wedding Secret.

Charles Depper and Frieda Helwig, both of Belleville, bought marriage licenses in St. Louis and East St. Louis, at a net cost of $3.50 and considerable carfare, when they could have had one in Belleville for a dollar and no carfare. The object of the extra expenditure was to keep their marriage secret, and they failed at that.

Depper and Miss Helwig first came to St. Louis, accompanied by another couple. They obtained a license, and when they found that it would not be kept secret they decided to be married in Illinois. They obtained a second license in East St. Louis. They decided to be married anyway and left the office for that purpose.

ROGER WILL WORK HIS "BIG THREE" IN REGULAR TURN

No Rest for Harmon, Steele and Sallee in Coming Series With Lowly Clubs.

THEY ARE NOT TIRED

Fast Pace of Cardinals Has Not Had Any Ill Effect on Twirlers, Says Bresnahan.

THIS is an open date in the schedule for the Cardinals and the players will take a much needed rest. Manager Bresnahan departed for Chicago Monday night, to appear as a witness before the Board of Directors [o]f the National League in the Sherwood Magee hearing Tuesday, but left [i]nstructions for the members of the [te]am to remain idle.

By losing three of the four games in [th]e series just closed with the Giants of [N]ew York, the Cardinals fared worse [th]an at any time since early in May, [w]hen they started on the winning streak [th]at made them the sensations of the [Na]tional League. A slump in batting [ca]used the dismal showing.

While many hold that the Cardinals [a]re about fagged out and in need of [a] long rest, Manager Bresnahan is not [of] that opinion. He does not believe [th]at his pitchers have been overworked [an]d says he intends to use Harmon, [S]teele and Sallee, the "Big Three" in [th]e coming series with the lowly Rust[le]rs and Superbas, instead of giving [th]em a rest and working the second [st]ring men.

What Roger Has to Say.

"We must win against the Boston and [B]rooklyn teams if we are to remain in [th]e National League fight," said Man[a]ger Bresnahan before starting for Chi[ca]go. "I think we will hit our stride [ag]ainst these teams and a few victories [wi]ll again place us in a good position as [the] race is so close that even after [a few] reverses we are not very far re[mo]ved from the top.

"Our slump in batting is a peculiar [on]e. There really isn't a man on the [te]am who is hitting right now. Usual[ly] when a team strikes a slump there [is] some fellow who keeps on hitting [an]d carries along the club alone; but [we] have no such man right now. I do[n']t look for this to continue very long, [ho]wever.

"Harmon, Steele and Sallee will take [the]ir regular turns against the Boston [an]d Brooklyn teams and by the time [we] get through with them I have hopes [of] again being in a good position in the [ra]ce."

[S]T. LOUIS CREWS TO RETURN HOME TODAY

[B]oth the Mound City and Western [Ro]wing Club four-oared shell crews, [wh]ich competed in the National regatta [r]aces at Saratoga, N. Y., Friday and [Sa]turday afternoons, are expected to [arr]ive home Tuesday. The Mound City [m]embers were a bit disappointed at the [sh]owing of their men and are anxious [to] hear what the wearers of the black [an]d gold jerseys have to say about [the] races.

[Th]e Westerns did about as well as ex[pect]ed, in fact, better than even Johnny [...]chim, captain and coach of the club [tho]ught.

[Th]e Central Rowing Club and West[ern] Rowing Club fours should furnish [a gr]eat race when they meet in the [con]test for the new Busch trophy, to [be he]ld under the auspices of the Cen[tral] Boat Club, a week from Sunday [on the] Mississippi.

HEATH DELIRIOUS TWO HOURS AFTER WINDY CITY SWIM

Cramps Lock Legs and Jaws of St. Louisan in Frigid Chicago River.

WATER WAS 54 DEGREES

Nineteen of 64 Finished; All Had to Be Lifted Into Boats.

[A]ugust M. Goessling, the crack Mis[sour]i A. C. swimmer, who returned f[rom] Chicago Monday, where he competed in the two and one-quarter mile race held in the Chicago River under the auspices of the Illinois A. C., declares that he never will compete in another Windy City race if held in the same stream.

Goessling says it is a miracle somebody was not drowned. There were 65 entrants for the race, which was two and one-quarter miles. Only 19 finished. The time of the winner was 43 minutes.

Goessling says that at the start, when the men plunged into the river, that the water was so cold it numbed him.

Chauncey Heath of the Missouri A. C., swimming his fast crawl stroke, soon left everybody else in the race behind. When nearing the finish the cold water cramped Heath and for a time he was swimming at randon, unable to keep his course.

Goessling Forced to Quit.

It was about this time that Goessling says he, too, began to get cramps about the neck. They pulled his jaws open and made it impossible for him to close his mouth. His whole neck began to get rigid and it was at this time that, Goessling declares, he decided that he had more than he wanted of the Chicago River and was helped into a row boat.

Heath managed to keep going and crossed the line sixth. It was necessary to lift him bodily from the river, as he was delirious and refused to believe he had finished. Goessling says Heath did not know where he was at or what he was doing for over an hour after the race and for that length of time was unable to talk. It was more than two hours after the race before Heath really began to understand how he finished sixth, after leading all the way.

Goessling states that not one of the 19 men who finished the race was able to get into a boat unassisted, but had to be dragged from the river.

Water Was 54 Degrees.

"I'll wager that for a half hour not one of the 19 knew whether they had been running a marathon or swimming," declared Goessling.

"The water was about 54 at Chicago for the swim. It was Lake Michigan water and nice and clear, but cold. It was colder than any spring water that I ever drank.

"Last year it was cold for the M. A. C. 10-mile swim. The Mississippi is usually about 70 for the 10-mile event, and even then some of the boys cramp badly. Nobody can realize what that Chicago swim is until they try it. Never again for me."

Goessling will compete in the five-mile swim Sunday from the Eads Bridge to the Western Rowing Club, 5000 south, in which several Chicago swimmers will be competitors. Goessling also plans to enter the 10-mile national championship swim, two weeks from Saturday. Goessling won the first 10-mile swim held under the auspices of the Missouri A. C.

Cards' A. M. Practice Like Dress Workout of Minstrel Troupe

Among Favorite Impersonations Were Rope Walker, Hammer Man, Hamlet and Salome.

TO see the Cardinals out for morning practice would never convince one that they are members of a major league team. Stranded troupes, co-eds in night gown parades and hard-time parties are not in it when it comes to the makeup of Manager Bresnahan's squad in the morning.

It was a comical-looking aggregation that reported to Manager Bresnahan for work Monday morning, the first morning practice the regular members of the team have had in several weeks. The Duke was the only player, judging from his clothes, who looked like a ballplayer. He wore a full traveling uniform, with cap and stockings of the 1910 variety.

But the others! Koney ran about barefooted. It was a favorite bit of pastime for the others to try to drop a bat, rock or throw water on Big Ed's feet.

Ellis and Oakes wore shoes, but no stockings. Wallace Smith wore a black jersey and white trousers, while Roy Golden, all in white, looked like Hamlet's ghost as he chased flies in left field.

Otto McIver was arrayed more for a swimming party than a baseball game. Or he might have thought he was a hammer thrower and togged up in his track suit. Evans had on a vari-colored set of scenery and amused his team-mates by burlesquing a tight rope walker on the foul lines. Steve used a bat to "balance" himself.

It's a good thing the Cardinals practice behind closed gates. Otherwise, the persons who object to "Salome" dances and such might find themselves worked overtime.

Wills Will Play Fuller.

Fuller (75) defeated Stock (75) in the second game of the play off of the three-cornered tie for first prize in the 18.2 balk-line billiard tournament at Peterson's Monday night, 177 to 154. Wills, scratch man of the tournament, will meet Fuller in the final game Tuesday night.

Manager Chance's headaches are improved at the same rate that the playing of the Cubs is improving. If the West Siders keep up their present winning streak for another week the peerless leader will not have to consult a doctor again [...] year.

REVIVAL OF BOXING IN ST. LOUIS HAS BROUGHT THESE LOCAL MEN TO THE FRONT

Dale and Trendall will box August 10, at the Coliseum, for the chance to show against Packey McFarland here on Labor day. Genail will appear in semi-wind-up on the same date.

MINOR LEAGUERS AGAIN TALK WAR

American Association Magnates Said to Be Eager to Invade Chicago.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—American Association magnates and owners of the different clubs in the minor league, are scheduled to meet in Chicago today to discuss with the powers of organized baseball the agreement between the National Baseball Commission and the American Association, which expires Sept. 1.

It is known that the American Association is looking for more territory and that Chicago is the most attractive city. It is also known that Charles Havenor, owner of the Milwaukee team, owns property in Chicago, which he could convert into a baseball park.

The meeting will be watched with much interest by the baseball men of the country, because it is thought the association owners will not renew the contract with the commission, without revision.

Every team in the American Association is forced through railroad connections to pass through Chicago and owners of the minor league assert they should have grounds here and thereby cut down expenses and do away with long trips.

THE DUKE VS. THE GIANT.
Fourth Round.

They stared each other in the face,
Across the bloody chasm,
Then opened the proceedings with
A line of choice sarcasm.

"You big, unmitigated 'yegg';
Who said you were a Giant?
You couldn't even beat an egg,"
Shouts Roger, still defiant.

At which the Giant, with a shrug,
To persiflage resorted:
"You couldn't beat a Turkish rug,
Or aces up," he snorted.

Then, having purged their systems of
These epigrams dramatic,
They grappled with each other in
A manner most emphatic.

Like lions caged they roared and raged
For two long, mortal hours.
Pause, stranger, here and drop a tear
Our hopes are dead—NO FLOWERS.

FIFTY ATHLETES IN M. A. C. GAMES

Central Y.M.C.A. and Columbus Club Enter Teams in Saturday's Meet.

The entry list of the open handicap track and field meet which will be held under the auspices of the Missouri A. C. at the Triple A. grounds in Forest Park Saturday afternoon closed Monday night and Dr. C. W. Bassett, director of athletics at the M. A. C., turned about 50 entry blanks over to Theodoric Bland, official handicapper of the W. A. A. U., who will announce the allowances for the meet Thursday.

The Central Y. M. C. A. and Columbus Club both entered teams for the meet. Willie Ratican, the former Christian Brothers' College sprinter, is the star of the Columbus Club team. Belleville, a new sprinter in the local events; Probst, a quarter and half mile runner, and Relley, a shot putter, and 56-pound weight thrower, are the best men on the Y. M. C. A. team.

Bassett has been training the M. A. C. athletes for some time and there is no question but that the wearers of the Cherry Diamond will carry off the majority of the prizes. R. C. King of the Missouri A. C. will be referee of the meet and Tom Aitken, the veteran Triple A golfer and groundkeeper, will do the starting.

President Lynch sent on Umpires Rigler and Finneran to handle the game. Finneran is the man who was poked in the mouth by Sherwood Magee.

Two Runs Off Marquard Not Enough to Let Cardinals Win From Giants

THE Cardinals broke part of their hoodoo against a southpaw and scored two runs Monday, but the Giants tallied one more and took the final show of the series, 3—2.

Manager McGraw warmed up Christy Mathewson and "Rube" Marquard. Despite the fact that the left-hander worked only last Saturday, John J. sent the young fellow back against the Cardinals. He didn't perform as well as in his opening show, but produced the desired result for the Giants.

Harry Sallee was Manager Bresnahan's first pitcher. He lasted four rounds, during which time the Giants piled up three runs. Then Louie Loudermilk went on the job for three rounds and blanked the New Yorkers. He retired to let Jack Bliss bat for him and Roy Golden finished and dished out two more ciphers.

To Loudermilk's failure to sacrifice, as much as anything else may be charged the defeat. Oakes and Bresnahan had singled with none gone in the fifth. Louie was instructed to sacrifice. He missed twice and Marquard curved over a third strike on him. As he did so Oakes started for third, but was pinched trying to pilfer on Meyers' peg to Herzog.

Huggins coaxed a pass, but Hauser rolled to Herzog, who stepped on third, forcing Bresnahan. Had Loudermilk sacrificed it would have put men on second and third with only one out.

Huggins started for the Cardinals by coaxing a pass. Hauser singled and they moved up on Ellis' sacrifice. Koney slapped a sacrifice fly to Becker and Huggins tallied after the catch.

With two gone in the seventh, Bresnahan and Bliss batted out a run. Roger hit between Snodgrass and Becker for a triple, and Bliss, swinging for Loudermilk, hit to center for a base, Roger scoring. Huggins also stung the ball, but his liner went straight to Fletcher.

Marquard allowed five hits, but he didn't keep them scattered as he did the four base knocks obtained off him last Saturday. He also poled three hits, driving in the first run and helping the third around.

Mike Mowrey got back in the pastime, despite the fact that he is still suffering from a severe cold. He turned a one-handed stop of a roller from Fletcher's bat in the fourth that was a beauty.

McGraw shook up his line-up and batting order. Because a left-hander was on duty, he benched Josh Devore and sent Murray to left and Becker to right. Snodgrass led off.

Manager Bresnahan was whacked twice on the left knee-cap Monday. In morning practice a foul tip hit him while he was catching and he retired. Again in the ninth inning a tip from Marquard's bat stung him on the same spot. He sank to the ground, apparently in great pain, [b]ut continued in the game.

HARRY TRENDALL OR DALE TO GET CHANCE AT STAR

McFarland or Matt Wells Will Box Labor Day at Mozart Club.

On the result of the Monte Dale-Harry Trendall bout, Thursday, Aug. 10, at the Coliseum, under the auspices of the Mozart Society, depends a chance that Packey McFarland will appear in a bout here. McFarland, at present, looms up as about the only man who would have an even chance against Ad Wolgast, the present holder of the lightweight championship title.

The Mozart Society is now dickering with McFarland for a bout to take place in St. Louis, Labor day.

McFarland is willing to come to St. Louis, but would like to work on a percentage basis. The Mozart Club contends that it merely brings off exhibitions of boxing and that the men are paid stipulated sums merely for training expenses and for their actual services in "entertaining the members."

Dale Vastly Improved.

Dale has picked up considerable weight, strength and skill since he started out as an amateur in St. Louis, and he thinks that he has more than a chance to knock Trendall out in their bout at the Coliseum. If he should happen to stop Trendall or even gain a good edge over the "Pride of the Patch" it would be Dale who would draw the McFarland plum for Labor day night, when the club plans to put on either McFarland or some other star in a bout at the Coliseum.

Mat Wells, the clever English lightweight, has written to St. Louis for a bout and is willing to come here on terms that are satisfactory to the Mozart Club men.

In case they can't close with McFarland, Wells is certain to be the club's choice to meet Trendall or Dale.

There will be no decision given in the bout at the Coliseum on Aug. 10 between Trendall and Dale. There will be three other bouts beside the main event. They are: Charley Dalwitz vs. Joe Genail, Harry Wade vs. "Abe Attell" and Benny McGovern vs. Bud Burson of Kansas City. Harry Cooke of the Business Men's Gymnasium will referee.

BARNEY SAYS IT WAS REAL MONEY

For Steenth Time Pirates' Owner Declares $22,500 Was O'Toole's Price.

PITTSBURG, Aug. 1.—Barney Dreyfuss, president of the Pirates, did some more denying and affirming today. In response to innumerable queries regarding the purchase of Pitcher Marty O'Toole, the Pittsburg magnate said he had paid $22,500 for the St. Paul star—real money—that he didn't expect to send any of his own men to the American Association town as part payment, that he paid this record price because he thought it a good investment and that all statements and guesses to the contrary were wrong.

One story, printed a few days ago, had it that Dreyfuss counted on winning the pennant and the world's championship with O'Toole, and thus getting back double his money. Inasmuch as O'Toole isn't to report here until the end of the Association season, he will have to pitch morning, noon and night after he arrives to be a real help to the Pirates in their fight for the flag.

He will report so late that he won't be eligible for the world's series, but perhaps the charm of his presence will move the other pitchers to greater effort. Local scribes and fans are now busy thinking up new questions to put to Barney.

Steve Evans Hands "One" to Mr. Faust, From Hector, Bigosh

Kansas Baseball Marvel Sees Ambition to Be a Giant Blow Up.

CHARLEY FAUST'S career as a Giant is ended. Manager McGraw took his players to Pittsburg Monday night, but the farmer boy from Hector, Kan., was not a member of the party. In fact things were dull at League Park before and during Monday's game because Charley was missing. He simply dropped off the earth and the players knew not what happened to him.

But no matter how long Charley lives, he'll probably never forget Sunday, July 30, in St. Louis. The big boy, whom a fortune teller told was to become a great pitcher, was called out on the field. St. Louis and New York players gathered in a circle about him with caps removed. Steve Evans approached. Removing his cap, he turned loose a little speech, while holding a green plush-covered jewel box, that was something like this:

"Mr. Faust, on behalf of the fans of St. Louis, who thoroughly appreciate your great work since becoming a member of the New York team, I present this slight token to you and hope you will continue to succeed in your chosen profession."

Was Charley swelled up? That's a mild way of putting it. The crowd cheered and cheered. Charley would have given anything if the folks up to Hector were on hand to see him. He doffed his cap. He doffed it twice. Then the players urged him to open the box. Surely it must be a watch, diamond studded fob or something like that. [...] box opened a spring touched off a [...] cap and all Charley got was a [...]

TOUGH NUTS TO CRACK.

TWELVE straight victories for Pittsburg, the graduation from lemondom of the Giant, Marquard, and the steady improvement shown by all the Cub pitchers make it evident that the pennant "trust" is going to make a staunch fight against being "busted." There is every reason to believe that the real strength of these three clubs will not be developed until the dash down the September stretch is inaugurated.

By that time each of the three clubs named—unless physical mishaps occur—will be materially stronger than it has shown at any time this season. Philadelphia and the Cardinals, that for so long put up the finest of fights, are at a disadvantage because of lack of men. Unless Magee is reinstated the Quakers seem to be seriously handicapped, even with him they will miss Dooin and Titus; while the tired Cardinals seem to need rest, not morning practice. Their lack of enough pitchers to go round is sure to handicap the club.

SCANT CHANCE FOR DREYFUSS.

MR. DREYFUSS' dream of getting O'Toole to help out for the Pirates in the stretch run may be shattered, if he is relying on the "gentlemen's agreement" with the owners of the St. Paul club, governing the disposition of that celebrated baseball commodity who, reduced to troy ounces, cost Pittsburg about $12 an ounce.

Dispatches stated that Lennon had agreed to let O'Toole join the Pirates as soon as "it was certain St. Paul was out of the running." St. Paul today is but five and one-half games out of first place and going well. There is no reason to believe it will be out of the fray completely, until near the close of the schedule, if at all.

HASTE MAKES WASTE.

SNAP judgment of baseball players has ruined many good men's chances by discouraging them. That it pays to take pains with the development of players none has more clearly demonstrated than John McGraw. This little Napoleon of the national game has made baseball players out of men other clubs would long since have discarded—notably Meyers, Merkle, Snodgrass and Marquard. Even Capt. Larry Doyle was at one time showing a decided lemon tint in his work. Persistence and patience developed all of them.

HONK! HONK! HONK!

IF James McAleer doesn't patch up his rattling Washington machine or move to one side of the American League road, he's in serious danger of being run down. Clan Wallace is coming. Dinna ye hear, them, noo? If not, have your ear examined, for they certainly are making a noise like a seventh place team.

TEAM'S ATTACK IS WEAK.

AT present the club is able to make a good fight against any man's team, short of Detroit or Philadelphia. If the men had any hitting force whatever the nine would make a considerable impression on the haughty beauties at the head of the second division.

But the impotence of the Browns at bat is very pronounced in a League where two of the eight clubs have been averaging .300 or better for the greater part of the season, and where are all except the St. Louisans have been hitting well.

PITCHING STAFF IMPROVES.

WALLACE can no longer complain of the pitching his club is receiving. He has been getting uniformly good service now from Powell, Lake and Pelty. Of late he has shown three much improved twirlers who, with a clouting club like Detroit back of them, would be undoubted factors—Hamilton, Mitchell and Nelson; while even the prize "lemon" of the flock, "Lefty" George, has shown signs of distinct improvement.

DEFENSE IS GOOD.

THE club has otherwise displayed improvement in its defense, showing up the Washington Club and making New York and Boston go their limit to win. With any sort of batting strength the Browns would have walked away from the Highlanders in the recent series.

Wallace has no reason to feel discouraged at the showing of his club this season. He has at least sifted out the chaff from his material.

With any sort of good fortune in the draw, next fall, he should strengthen up his hitting enough to show some improvement in the team's standing in 1912.

SUCH A DIFFERENCE!

IN passing it may be observed that the Cardinals have just as good a chance to win the pennant as the Browns have to finish seventh. At least they both have to make up the same amount of ground—six full games. However, the Browns have only a faltering club to pass, while those the Cardinals must chase are gaining strength every week.

JOE WOOD CHEATS BROWNS OUT OF DOUBLE VICTOR[Y]

He Relieves Ray Collins, Just [a]s Wallace's Men Start to Rout Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—A hurry call for Joe Wood in the last inning of the first game yesterday was all that saved the Red Sox from dropping two to the Brownies. This St. Louis tail-end proposition is playing ball these days, and an even break, with the scores 3 to 2 in each, wasn't half bad for the local ball tossers.

Ray Collins twirled fine ball for eight innings and then took his little balloon and went up among the clouds. Mitchell worked nicely and the Red Sox just got to him in one inning, the lucky seventh, for enough to cash in with.

Powell Holds Boston[...].

Jack Powell's knowledge of what to give a batter and his ability to serve it up had Boston clearly backed off the board in the second game. If errors hadn't been made back of him, the Red Sox would not have scored. On the other hand, Larry Pape's twirling gave the Browns enough tallies to win. Jack Killilay, who finished the game from the third, was never in distress, holding his opponents for five scattered hits, doing good work with men on bases. The ball Larry Pape served the Browns in the first inning looked as big as a water bottle and it was about as easy to hit. Two runs came on three hits, which was some handicap.

Shotton has shown himself to be a corking fielder. He made two remarkable catches yesterday that went a long way toward holding the Red Sox safe.

Austin played in hard luck; both Yerkes and Engle got hits in the first game on slams that hopped over his head.

* * *

Krichell's catch of Speaker's foul was in itself some stunt, being against the boxes, but his throw to Laporte, doubling Engle, was the class.

* * *

Clyde missed making a home run by inches in the sixth. The ball fell to left of the "pie section." Hogan made a great try for it, leaning over the fence.

Diamond Glints

The Tigers won Monday's game from the Athletics and retained the lead in the American League race. They h[it] Harry Krause hard. Score, 6—4, four [runs] being shoved over in the tenth.

Tyrus Cobb performed in sensatio[nal] style. He pulled down eight flies, bes[ides] getting a hit and scoring a run.

The Rustlers will give the Pirates [a] chance to win their thirteenth successive game Tuesday. The contest is the only one scheduled in the National League.

The Quakers lost to the Cubs and dropped to third place. Despite Manager Dooin's absence, the Philadelphia got a 2—2 break against the leaders.

Tommy Dowd, the old Brownie, has lost out as manager of the New Bedford (New England League) team.

The Commercial Club of Iowa City wants to buy the Hannibal franchise in the Central Association.

Doc White allowed only four hits and blanked the Yankees, while the Sox tallied 13 runs off Jack Warhop.

In Memoriam.

In memory of our dear son and brother, John W. Bruening, who departed this life one year ago, July 31, 1910.

Sad and sudden was the call
Of dear John, loved by all;
We little thought that on that day
He would be called away.

Sadly missed by FAMILY.

Lost and Found

IF YOU LOSE ANYTHING, and will advertise it here, you will surely recover it if found by an honest person. A 3-time ad seldom fails. Remarkable recoveries are brought about every day through this column. Your druggist our agent.

IF YOU FIND ANYTHING, bring it to the Post-Dispatch Lost and Found Bureau, 210-212 North Broadway. Get a claim check. Advertise the article. Reclaim it if the owner does not.

THE LAW—People who find lost articles are interested in knowing that the State Law (Sections 8268 and 8273, R. S., 1909) is strict in requiring them to seek the owners through advertisement and otherwise, and that a failure to do so, if same can be proven, involves a severe penalty.

EGYPT HAS BEEN CONSUMING BEER FOR 5000 YEARS

Food Experts So Informed When They Resume Inquiry as to "What Is Beer?"

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Entering the illustrious names of Herodotus, Caesar, Plato and other ancients as earnest drinkers of beer, barley growers and brewers from throughout the country began testimony before the Board of Food and Drug Inspection to determine the long-disputed question, "What is beer?"

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief chemist, who heads the board, shared honors with the ancient convivialists by announcing early that his chief complaint was that too little beer was found in the ordinary glass of commerce sold to the thirsty.

Tired of the Foam.

"I'm tired of buying foam," said the pure food expert, indignantly. "There should be a line on glasses indicating where solid beer ends."

Chemist Wiley looked thirstily on the pitcher that adorned the Speaker's table. It contained only water.

John R. Mauff, representing the National Consumers' League and the Wisconsin Board of the American Society of Equity, argued that most people were of the impression that beer was made of barley malt, hops and water, when in reality inferior grains or chemical preservatives were substituted. He asserted that the brewers could lose nothing by labeling their product and that the consumer soon would indicate his preference for various kinds of beer manufactured.

Egypt Holds the Record.

Mauff told the board that Egypt holds the record for continuous beer drinking, having quaffed the liquor for 5000 years. He exploited the methods of making beer, but charged that the public did not get enough for its money. He referred to the fact that the consumer when sold a "pint" or a "quart" in reality was given what is known on brewers' invoices as a "small" or a "large" and that since the Spanish-American war, the "five quarts to a gallon," measure never had been changed.

KNOST HELD ON HOMICIDE VERDICT BY CORONER'S JURY

John J. Gorman, Whom He Struck With Fist, Fell Against Fire Plug and Died.

A Coroner's jury Tuesday returned a verdict of homicide, following an inquiry into the death of John J. Gorman, 7224 North Broadway, who died at the city hospital Saturday night from a fracture of the skull and hemorrhage of the brain, after he fell against a fire plug at Broadway and Chestnut street as a result of a blow delivered by Fred Knost, 219 West Nagel avenue.

Knost was taken to Central Police Station. He expected to arrange bond.

Knost, Miss May McGuire, over whom the trouble occured, and John J. Boltas, a motorman of 4615 Pennsylvania avenue, and Harry Rathmann, 4443 Minnesota avenue, were the principal witnesses at the Coroner's investigation.

Tells of the Meeting.

Knost said that he was standing at Broadway and Chestnut street Saturday night, talking to Miss McGuire, with whom he had an engagement, and Boltas and Rathmann, when Gorman approached. He testified that none of the party knew Gorman and that he was staggering a little. Gorman put his left hand on Boltas' shoulder, Knost said, and his right hand on Miss McGuire's shoulder, and said "Hello, kid," or "Hello, doll."

Knost testified he said "Here, here, that will never do," and gave Gorman a push backward with his hand. Gorman came back, he said, and it was then that he struck him with his partly clenched left hand on the jaw. He said that he could not double up the little finger of his left hand. Gorman reeled backward and his skull was crushed.

Boltas testified that he did not see Knost strike Gorman but looked around in time to see Gorman fall against the fire plug.

Fathmann's testimony was similar to that of Boltas. He also turned to look at an automobile, and did not see Knost strike Gorman.

Miss McGuire said that a fishing trip was being planned when Gorman, whom she never had seen before, walked up to the party. She said that Gorman put his hand on her shoulder, and that Knost struck him on the jaw.

Suffragists to Open Campaign.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The fall woman's suffrage campaign will be opened in New York early next month with a mass meeting at which the five governors of the five suffrage states will speak. Mrs. Emeline Pankhurst, the English suffragette, will come to America in October for a series of addresses on the "cause."

HARRY M. RUBEY DENIES CHARGES IN RECEIVER SUIT

Telephones to Lawyer From Macon, Mo., About Bankers' Assurance Controversy.

PRACTICALLY QUIT IN MAY

Declares He Was Not in Deal for the Mortgage of Washington County Lands.

Harry M. Rubey's side of the controversy which resulted in a receivership for the American Bankers' Assurance Co., of which he was formerly president, was stated in a letter and a long-distance telephone message received Tuesday by Thomas L. Anderson, attorney for Rubey. Rubey is at his home in Macon, Mo.

Speaking in Rubey's behalf, Anderson denied to a Post-Dispatch reporter Tuesday the allegations made against Rubey in the receivership suit filed by partisans of John B. Christensen. The suit resulted yesterday in the appointment by Judge McQuillin of Chase Morsey as receiver.

"The Rubey Trust Co. of Macon, a $100,000 concern, and one of the strongest institutions north of the Missouri River, is not affected in any way by this suit," said Anderson.

"It has perhaps $4500 of the cash assets of the American Bankers' Assurance Co., which is on deposit and subject to withdrawal by check.

"Mr. Rubey had nothing to do with the deal, complained of in the suit, for the mortgage on certain Washington County lands. Neither did he give any encouragement to the Babler and Shifflet claims. Writing to Christensen May 1, he said that Babler had no contract with the company entitling him to anything, and advised Christensen, if Babler sued, to let him sue.

"Mr. Rubey's connection with the American Bankers' Assurance Co. practically ended last May. His father and mother were both very sick, and he had to take them to a sanitarium in Minnesota for treatment. Later he had to take his wife there. He notified the directors that he would not be able to give his time to the company, but Christensen, with the others, urged him to remain as president. He remained until Landon was elected at the recent meeting in St. Louis."

Landon has also denied the allegations made in the suit.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

PUFFS SAVE GIRL'S LIFE

Miss Susan Blim owes her life to a cluster of puffs which she wore on the back of her head when she tumbled from a street car Sunday night. She is employed at the home of Senator Edmund Beall and was going home when she fell.

After alighting on the back of her head she hurriedly got up and gathered together the puffs that helped to form a large rat in the back of her hair. She was uninjured.

STANDARD OIL OUTLINES PLAN OF REORGANIZATION

Gigantic Task Cannot Be Completed Before December 1, It Is Expected.

LETTER TO STOCKHOLDERS

New Jersey Concern Will Give Stock of All of Its Subsidiary Companies.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Announcement was made by the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey in a communication to its stockholders of the way it intends to reorganize to meet the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law.

The plan provides that stock in about thirty-five subsidiary companies shall be distributed ratably among the stockholders in the parent company. Dissolution will be about Dec. 1.

The detailed plan showing what pro rata shares in the subsidiary companies the Standard Oil stockholder may expect under the reorganization will be made known later.

Much Time Needed.

This is a matter of computation and will require some time, but the communication today shows in outline the manner in which the company proposes to reorganize.

The communication addressed to the stockholders by H. C. Folger, secretary, is dated July 28, and is as follows:

"Obedience to the final decree in the case of the United States against the Standard Oil Co. (of New Jersey) and others requires this company to distribute, or cause to be distributed, ratably, to its stockholders the shares of stock of the following corporations, which it owns directly or through its ownership of stock of the National Transit Co., to-wit:

List of Concerns.

"Anglo-American Oil Co., limited; the Atlantic Refining Co., Borne-Scrymser Co., the Boyer Pipe Co., Chesebrough Manufacturing Co., Crescent Pipe Line Co., Cumberland Pipe Line Co., incorporated; Eureka Pipe Line Co., Galena Signal Oil Co., Indiana Pipe Line Co., National Transit Co., New York Transit Co., Northern Pipe Line Co., Ohio Oil Co., Prairie Oil and Gas Co., Solar Refining Co.

Southern Pipe Line Company, South Pennsylvania Oil Company, Southwest Pennsylvania Pipe Lines, Standard Oil Company (California), Standard Oil Company (Indiana), Standard Oil Company (Kansas), Standard Oil Company (Kentucky), Standard Oil Company (Nebraska), Standard Oil Company (New York), Standard Oil Company (Ohio), Swan & Finch Co., Union Tank Line Company, Vacum Oil Company, Washington Oil Company, Waters-Pierce Oil Company.

The Transfer Plan.

"Such distribution will be made to the stockholders of the Standard Oil Co. (of New Jersey) of record on the last day of September, 1911, and, for that purpose, the transfer books of the company will be closed on the 31st day of August, 1911, at 3 o'clock p. m., and kept closed until the date when said stocks are ready for distribution, which it is expected will be about Dec. 1, 1911.

"Notice of the date when said stocks are to be distributed and of the reopening of the books will be duly given."

RAILROAD EARNINGS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The following rail...road earnings were reported:
...Seaboard Air Line—Third week of July: Gross $362,044, increase $24,053. From July 1: Gross $1,133,501, decrease $59,343.
...St. Louis, Rocky Mountain & Pacific—Month of June: Gross $159,768, decrease $21,237; net $57,711, decrease $621. For one year: Gross $2,008,622, increase $124,379; net $716,499, increase $48,989.

CANADIAN PACIFIC.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Financial World says: "The losses of all who have fought the big advances in Canadian Pacific have carried such terror into the ranks of the bears that very few can gather enough courage to go short of the stock. The elim...nation of the short element has increased ...e vulnerability of this highly inflated stock. The collapse will probably come when those who have for months opposed the advance expect it the least. It has always been so and will continue to be so. When the strength which opposition creates disappears, prices begin to seek their proper level."

Tariff Talk Checks Activity in the Wool Market.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Trading in the wool ...arket has been checked considerably by ...ncertainty regarding tariff legislation at Washington. In many quarters the disposi...tion has been to clean up all new wools to the highest bidder. In this way the margin of profit has been small, but a moderate profit minus the expense of carrying the stock for an indefinite period seemed to be considered better than risks attending developments in Congress.
The demand for Ohio fleeces continues to be good. Sales of half-blood are quoted ...om 25@26c. A further demand for Mis...souri bright wools has been noted. One lot ... 125,000 pounds of half, three-eighths and ...arter bloods is reported on private terms. ...a wools are moving around 52@53c.

NATIVE CATTLE—Conditions were about the same as prevailed yesterday. The supply was fairly liberal, particularly of the lower grades of grassers. The offering of good cattle was no larger than needed, but the common kinds were too plentiful for steady prices to be maintained. Best cattle of the various kinds were steady, but the inferior to medium grades ruled 10c to 15c lower. Steers topped at $7 and calves at $7.50.

SOUTHERN CATTLE—There was a fairly active market today, with steadiness prevailing in the majority of cases. Offerings were mostly Oklahoma steers ranging common to good in quality. There was a fairly active inquiry on order account, but local houses were slower to take on supplies. Oklahoma steers topped the market at $5.60.

HOGS—The supply was moderate only, but the market opened on a 5@10c lower basis and later in the day was fully 5c lower than the average Monday trade. The top of the market was $7.40 and the bulk of the hogs sold at $7.10@7.30, the wide range being from the fact that the packers were bearish and would not price up close to what the shippers and butchers were giving. Packers secured their hogs at $7@7.20. Best lights sold at $6.75@7.25 and the pigs at $5@6.25. Roughs sold at $5.50@6.50 as a rule. The close was on a very weak basis and the clearance not very good.

Moving of Bumper Cotton Crop Calls for Aid of Local Banks.

New York exchange at St. Louis is still at a substantial discount, and it is probably true that many balances have been reduced one-fifth to one-fourth in the past 30 days. Most of the local institutions are planning for a vigorous outward movement of currency for the growing moving of the cotton crop, and this will probably mean an earlier withdrawal of funds in many cases than was true of last year. Rates are still 4½ to 5 per cent in many instances, but the tendency is distinctly toward the latter quotation.

Wheat took a brace in the late market Tuesday and scored a good gain. The buying followed a sharp rise in prices at Minneapolis, backed by "rust damage" reports from the spring wheat territory.
The corn belt had additional moisture yesterday and traders say conditions have been vastly improved in the last week, but that the actual betterment will hardly show in the coming Government report. Oats were also easier on continued heavy receipts and improved weather conditions.
Chicago stocks of wheat in store showed a further increase of 2,623,000 bu for the week, making the total 15,909,000 bu. Contract stocks gained 1,603,000 bu to 11,377,000 bu.
The Liverpool wheat market opened under pressure of realizing and prices were ¼d lower on the American visible, the lower trend in American values and less apprehension felt here regarding rust damage reports. Following the opening there was some little show of strength on an improved inquiry for Plate steamers and an expected decrease in the European visible. Later heaviness again developed and there was a further decline on the weakness in Berlin, and general dullness, with spot markets lower.
Liverpool corn was quiet and unchanged at the opening, but later declined ¼d. The bullish reports cabled abroad yesterday on condition in Oklahoma were offset by a disappointing local consumption and freer European offers.
Liverpool wheat futures closed ⅜@½d lower; corn, ⅛d lower. Berlin wheat ⅞c lower, Budapest, ¼c lower.
Minneapolis cars of wheat are running light, today's totals showing 150, against 318 last week, 150 last year and 91 two years ago. Duluth had 123, last week 79, last year 64, two years ago 35. Winnipeg had 277, against 209 last year.
Chicago wheat receipts today were 681,200 bu, against 717,200 bu last year. Shipments, 645,600 bu, against 83,300 bu last year.
Kansas City wheat receipts today were 178,800 bu, against 519,600 bu last year. Shipments, 69,600 bu, against 222,000 bu last year.
Local wheat receipts today were 64,544 bu, or 50 cars local. Last year, 196,793 bu, or 17,597 sacks, 120 cars local, 11 through.
Local corn receipts today were 61,975 bu, or 310 sacks, 39 cars local, 12 through; last year, 63,600 bu, or 37 cars local, 16 through.
Local oats receipts today were 113,900 bu, or 54 cars local, 13 through; last year, 71,... bu, or 31 cars local, 11 through.
Total primary wheat receipts today were 1,366,025 bu, against 1,991,400 bu last year. Shipments, 1,019,814 bu, against 482,700 bu last year.
Broomhall's cable said:
"Latest advices from Russia state that the weather in the Southwest has changed for the better, it now being fine, which is favorable for harvesting. There have been heavy rains in the Caucasus region. The Volga district continues to buy from Rostoff. There have been good general rains in Roumania, which have been very favorable for the growing crop of corn."
The European wheat visible decreased 250,000 bu for the week, making the total 71,526,000 bu, against 71,776,000 bu last week. Last week there was a decrease of 960,000 bu and last year 4,504,000 bu when the total was 59,616,000 bu.
Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 400,000 bu for 3 days, against 175,000 bu last year.
The Iowa crop report says corn has been damaged 30 per cent the past month.
Bradstreet's world's available wheat supplies for last week showed: Wheat east of the Rockies increased 7,116,000 bu; Canadian decreased 45,000 bu; afloat and in Europe decreased 200,000 bu; total increase, 6,871,000 bu. Corn decreased 364,000 bu; oats 274,000 bu.
Export clearances of wheat and flour today were 467,000 bu; corn 34,000 bu; oats none.
Cash wheat closed a fraction higher and in good demand.
Cash corn ½@1½c lower, and dull.
Cash oats easier for white grades, but in good demand for shipment; mixed oats scarce and strong.

London Securities Quiet and Slightly Higher.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—American securities opened quiet and a fraction higher today. Later prices declined on light realizing and at noon the market was quiet, with values ranging from ¼ above to ⅜ below yesterday's New York closing.
Later Canadian Pacific declined on selling by Berlin, and the rest of the list sagged in the absence of Wall street support. The closing was dull.

COTTON SHORTS COVER IN ADVANCE OF BUREAU REPORT

NEW YORK COTTON CLOSE.

August	12.15@12.17c
September	11.11@11.13c
October	10.90@10.93c
November	10.93@10.94c
December	10.97@10.98c
March	11.01@11.02c
May	11.13@11.15c

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The cotton market opened steady, with August unchanged, but with other months 3 to 8 points higher in response to better cables than due, and the general list sold about 14 to 16 points above the closing figures of yesterday during the first half hour on covering for over-the-bureau report tomorrow and support from reactionists.
Two private condition reports issued showed an improvement of only a little over 1 per cent in crop prospects for the past month, suggesting rather a lower official condition than previously looked for, and probably contributed to the early advance, but offerings increased above 11c for October and December, and the market during the noon hour was irregular.
August sold up to 12.26c, or about 20 points net higher, but eased off 10 or 12 points just before midday, while the new crop continued nervous and irregular, with prices reacting 4 or 5 points after having shown a net gain of from 16 to 18 points, on covering of buying by reactionists. A bale of new crop cotton was reported at Mobile, the earliest on record for the past 10 years.
Spot cotton nominal. Estimated receipts at the ports today, 1800 bales, against 744 bales last week and 453 bales last year. For the week, 10,000 bales, against 7386 bales last week and 6923 bales last year. Today's receipts at New Orleans, 97 bales, against 3 bales last year, and at Houston, 1275 bales, against 216 bales last year.
The market was less active during the early afternoon. There seemed to be cotton wanted on little dips, particularly below 11 cents, for the new crop months, while offerings increased above the level, suggesting an opinion in trade circles that the price just about discounted the Government report at noon tomorrow, which is expected to make the condition between 90 and 91, against 88 last month and 75.5 last year. The closing was steady.

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 1.—Closing: Cotton spot quiet; prices steady; American middling, fair, 7.22d; good middling, 6.88d; middling, 6.62d; low middling, 6.42d; good ordinary, 6.16d; ordinary, 5.91d.
The sales of the day were 6000 bales, of which 300 were for speculation and export and included 5500 American. Receipts, 1000 bales, including 200 American.
Futures opened firm and closed very steady. Aug., 6.36½d; Aug.-Sept., 6.21d; Sept.-Oct., 5.97d; Oct.-Nov., 5.90d; Nov.-Dec., 5.85½d; Dec.-Jan., 5.85d; Jan.-Feb., 5.86d; Feb.-March, 5.88d; March-April, 5.90d; April-May, 5.91½d; May-June, 5.93d.

Ore Certificates Are in a Peculiar Position.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—It looks as if the world is beginning to revise its opinion of the merits of the Great Northern Ore certificates, which for a long time had sold too high for the dividends paid on them. So far only $1 a year has been paid, from 1907 to 1909 inclusive. In 1910, $1.50 was paid, and, so far in 1911, only 50 cents. What seems to hurt these certificates is the fear that the Steel Trust will in 1914 cancel its lease of the property. This it has a right to do. Then an uncertain future will confront the certificate holders. Of course, should the Steel Trust continue the lease after 1914, then the certificates will turn out very valuable, as the royalties which the trust has to pay will grow with every succeeding year.

Southern Railway's Earning Well Over Present Dividend.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—There is great probability that the preferred dividend on which 1 per cent was paid April 24, 1911, will be increased to 2 per cent at the next directors' meeting. As over 9 per cent has been earned on the preferred stock the fiscal year ended June 30, 1911, and the prospects for another year are good on account of the fine cotton crop condition, there is no reason why the dividend should not be increased. It may have been better not to start dividends on the preferred stock and to devote the earnings to the upbuilding of the property, but as the powers that be have decided otherwise, they ought not to disappoint the shareholders who in the advance of the preferred stock to 72 see a sign of higher dividends. Failure to increase the dividend will be interpreted only as a scheme to use dividend talk for unloading stock.

The American Tobacco Company

PREFERRED STOCK

To the holders of preferred stock of THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY:

In view of the direction in the recent decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the suit brought by the United States of America against The American Tobacco Company and others, that proceedings be had for the purpose of ascertaining and determining upon some plan or method of dissolving the combination and of recreating out of the elements now composing it a new condition which shall be honestly in harmony with and not repugnant to the law without unnecessary injury to the public or the rights of private property, and at the request of the holders of a large amount of the preferred stock of said The American Tobacco Company, the undersigned have consented to act as a committee for the protection of the interests of all of the holders of said preferred stock who shall become parties to an agreement now in course of preparation, to be dated July 28, 1911.

Holders of said preferred stock are requested to deposit their certificates on or before AUGUST 28, 1911, with CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 54 Wall Street, New York City, the depositary to be named in said agreement, which will issue transferable certificates of deposit therefor. All certificates must be properly endorsed in blank and bear all stock transfer stamps required by the laws of the State of New York.

As the opinion of the Supreme Court directs that a period of six months be allowed for the accomplishment of the purposes above stated, the interests of the holders of said preferred stock demand, in the judgment of the committee, immediate and concerted action for their protection, and the committee urges the necessity of an immediate deposit of said stock.

Copies of the deposit agreement may be obtained on and after July 31, 1911, from the depositary or from the secretary of the committee.

Application will be made to list the certificates of deposit issued by the committee upon the New York Stock Exchange.

Dated July 28, 1911.

OF THREE NDITS ROBBING BANK IS KILLED

ad the Booty Amounting to $10,000, Which Was Recovered.

COMPANIONS ESCAPE

s in Automobiles Are After hem—One Was Nervous and Gave Alarm.

LEM, Mont., Aug. 1.—Of the three d men who robbed the First Na- Bank of Harlem one, the man d the booty in his possession, was and two escaped. Posses are after them and it is believed vill be captured. The money was red.

oon yesterday the three men rode the bank and entered. As they two of them covered the cashier is assistant, the only persons in ank, with revolvers. The third t behind the counter and filled a k with gold, silver and bills from e counter and the vault, which was en. The total taken amounted to ,000.

Robber Gives Alarm.

ersons in the neighborhood noticed hing wrong until one of the robbers, evidently nervous and excited, accidentally fired a revolver, which gave the alarm and brought Marshal Taswell to the back door of the bank. As he entered, one of the robbers fired at him, and in turn the Marshal fired, killing the man, who was just going out with the money.

The other two men ran from the building, mounted their horses and rode off at full speed. Within a few minutes two automobiles, loaded with armed men, started in pursuit. Other posses have joined in the chase.

May Hide in Mountains.

The vicinity of Harlem was formerly the rendezvous of the Curry gang of robbers, and it is conjectured that these men were part of the old gang. In that event it is probable it will be hard to locate them, as they are familiar with the country and with hiding places in the mountains.

BAROMETER FALL OR RISE AROUSES PATIENT'S FRENZY

Man Who Escaped From Lightning in Plight Through Self-Hypnotism.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—George Spako, 36 years old, of Newark, N. J., is in the city hospital suffering from a strange disease. The physicians said that the symptoms are those of extreme terror, and that the paroxysms of fury into which he is thrown from time to time, appear to be suggestive of self-hyphontism and to hang upon the actions of the barometer. The slightest change in the weather makes the patient delirious.

The neighbors noticed that there was a change of weather suggestive of a thunderstorm, he became frantic. At last, he was taken to the hospital. Spako foretold a rise or fall of the barometer by violent prayers to be saved from the lightning. He seems to be sane on every subject during his period of rest. The spells of hysteria seem to be increasing and appear now to be suggested by his own mind automatically, where there is no change in the weather.

Those who try Post-Dispatch wants in solving domestic and business problems as they come, are pleased with the wants.

UPTON SINCLAIR'S ARREST IS CAUSED BY AN ANARCHIST

11 of "The Jungle" Man's Colony Accused of Breaking Delaware Blue Law.

TENNIS PLAYING CHARGED

Emma Goldman Gets Into the Mix-Up and More Discord in Arden Is Now Expected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WILMINGTON, Dela., Aug. 1.—George Brown, the philosophic anarchist, who served five days in jail last week for breaking up a meeting at the single tax colony in Arden, Dela., swore out warrants for the arrest of 11 of his prosecutors, chief among them being Upton Sinclair, author of "The Jungle," and a prominent resident at the colony of Henry George followers. All are charged with violating the Sunday blue laws.

Sinclair is accused of playing lawn tennis with several girls. The girls were not arrested. Prof. J. H. Garrod of the Northeast Manual Training School, Philadelphia; Fred Windle, a well-known Philadelphia lawyer; Harold Ware, Hamilton Ware, Don Stephens, Berkley Toby, Frank Leach, Chester Lightdown and Alexander Dubin are accused of playing baseball, having defeated the Carrcroft team by a score of 10 to 2, Sunday.

Ice Cream Stand Open.

The Carrcrofters are not single taxers, so no warrant for them was asked. The threat of the anarchist had the effect of closing the colony store Sunday, but the ice cream stand remained open during the ball game, and so Brown charges Fred Steinle of Wilmington with selling ice cream to the colonists on a hot Sunday. Steinle was the Democratic candidate for City Treasurer at the Wilmington election last month.

The Economic Club, whose meeting Brown broke up, will air the troubles at a public meeting Thursday night. The anarchist's wife said today she did not favor the arrest of the colonists. Her theory is that "victory is best achieved if personal feelings are left out of the combat."

Goldman Praises Him.

Brown today received a letter from Emma Goldman, in which she praised him for his attitude, and said, "I could just hug you for not paying the fine." She also said she is glad she can be instrumental in showing up "these fake reformers."

The genesis of the mix-up dates back to an open-air performance of "Merrie England" last September. Brown then appeared clad as a mendicant, although not on the program, and solicited alms from passers-by. This was resented. He says he will be even bolder at the repetition of the performance in September.

Lively Time Is Expected.

"I will represent the Sheriff of Nottingham then," said he, "and will have a posse. We will march on the field and arrest Robin Hood, who will most likely be William Price, a noted Philadelphia architect."

As Price is a large man, this part of the show will be looked forward to with interest.

Some of the colonists are disgruntled over their land holdings and an allegation that a clique runs the place. The Brown episode has brought this to the surface and further discord is expected. Fred Steinle says Brown will be denied the use of the floor at the meeting Thursday night, as was done on the occasion of his arrest.

WANTS DIVORCE FROM FILIPINO WIFE

Navy Lieutenant Promised to Pay $20 a Month for Daughter's Possession.

The deposition of Edward A. Douthitt, of Honolulu, in the divorce suit of Lieut. James H. Comfort against Celerina Comfort was filed in Judge Fisher's division of the Circuit Court in St. Louis today. Lieut. Comfort is an officer in the United States navy and is a St. Louisan. He married while he was stationed in the Phillippine Islands, and in a previous desposition it was stated that his wife was a Filipino.

Douthitt's deposition sets forth that he drew up the agreement of separation. He states that Mrs. Comfort agreed to give up all claim to their daughter, Anita, aged 9 years, who is in a Chicago convent, if her husband would pay her $20 a month.

Lieut. Comfort is stationed in a recruiting station in Chicago now.

Brown's South Side Business College Opens Today.

The sixth school of the Brown System in St. Louis opened this morning in the new quarters at Jefferson and Gravois. This location is next to the lot on which the permanent building of the school is to be erected.

The formal opening of the school will take place Sept. 5, the date of the beginning of the regular fall term, but the interest shown in the new school on the South Side was such that it was decided to open earlier than September for a short summer term.

Principal A. C. Owings is in charge of the school.

Liquor Seizure Forbidden.

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Aug. 1.—A transfer company when named by the shipper as consignee, jointly with the railroad, of liquor shipped into Oklahoma, is as much a common carrier as the railroad, according to a decision by Federal Judge Campbell, upon which he issued temporary injunctions restraining county and city officers in Muskogee, Tulsa and Creek counties from seizing liquor from transfer wagons.

ARREST FOR SILENT McNAMARA WITNESS

McManigal's Uncle Placed Under Bond for Refusal to Testify Before Grand Jury.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.—George Behm, of Portage, Wis., uncle of Ortie E. McManigal, confessed dynamiter and alleged confederate of the accused McNamara brothers, was arrested late last night on a citation issued at the behest of the grand jury charging him with contempt.

Following the example of Mrs. McManigal, Behm refused to answer questions regarding any knowledge of the dynamite conspiracies of which his nephew and the McNamara brothers, John and James, stand accused.

The citation was issued after Behm had been several hours in the grand jury room. He was arrested shortly afterward and released on bond of $1000 to appear tomorrow.

Mills and Factories in Carolinas Forced to Close Through Lack of Power.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Aug. 1.—As a climax to the unprecedented drouth this section is experiencing, 182 cotton mills in North and South Carolina shut down because the water in Catawba River is so low the Southern Power Co. cannot supply the plants with power. It is estimated that 70,000 operatives are thrown out of employment; but it is believed work will be resumed in two days.

It has been many weeks since rain has fallen and creeks which have not gone dry in 45 years are mud holes. Mountain streams to the west, upon which many flouring mills, tanneries and cotton mills are dependent for power, have dwindled to mere brooks and many of the manufacturing enterprises have been forced to shut down.
